Franco-Italian Rupture Is Deepening Into Crisis

FASCIST PAPERS FAN WAR FLAMES; PARIS ADAMANT

in French Protectorate.

DALADIER FACES VOTE ON SATURDAY

Strong Government To Meet Threat Demanded in Chamber of Deputies.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—(P)—Something like a European crisis has arisen over Italy's "unofficial" clamor for French-protected Tunisia.

Italian and anti-Italian demonstrations and disorders in the French north African protectorate, heavy reinforcements of the mobile guard there and reports that Italians in Tunisia were planning to defend themselves were the newest factors of the near-crisis today.

Reports from the French-Spanish border that Italian troops were massed in insurgent Spain just across the Pyrenees from France emphasized fears that Italy might be preparing to translate agitation into military action.

Street Demonstrations.

In the style of street demonstrations in Italy which followed Foreign Minister Ciano's November 30 speech on Italian "aspirations," thousands of French students demonstrated today against Italy and battled police in Paris.

Where Italian students and young Fascists had shouted,
"Tunisia For Us!" the French demonstrators cried, "Venice for France! . . . Ethiopia for the Negus!" Similar manifestations occurred late yesterday in several cities of France.

There were fresh demonstrations in Italy as the Italian press told of "new violence" against the Italian population of Tunisia.

In the midst of this resurgent colonial rivalry between France and Italy, French Premier Daladier went before parliament in an attempt to strengthen his government's position at home the better to meet Italy's clamor.

Vote Saturday.

The chamber of deputies and the senate started general debate leading up to a vote Saturday on Daladier's domestic and foreign policy.

Daladier was confronted by a long list of demands for explanation of his decree laws for "economic mobilization," his smashing of protest strikes, his post-Munich good neighbor accord with Germany and his efforts toward a similar understanding with Italy.

Despite the open hostility of his Socialist and Communist former allies, Daladier appeared assured of a vote of confidence from a new conservative majority in the chamber.

Rightist orators in the chamber declared the People's Front—

Eden's Visit Is To Observe Reaction to British Policy

Envoy Comes With Full Approval of His Majesty's Government.

By FREDERICK KUH.
(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.)
NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Captain Anthony Eden, former British secretary for foreign affairs, will arrive here tomorrow ostensibly on a private visit—but actually in the capacity of a free-lance diplomat seeking to sound out American political reactions toward British policy in Europe.

This has been known since Captain Eden accepted the invitation to address the Congress of American Industry at the Waldorf-Astoria tomorrow night, but it was given a quasi-official complexion by statements of Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, in the house of lords.

Lord Halifax announced Captain Eden is coming to America
"with the fullest assent and approbation of the government."

Even more significantly, he compared his predecessor's visit to that of Viscount Runciman's to these shores in 1935, in which the groundwork for the recently completed Anglo-American trade pact was understood to have been laid.

These matters seemed to be definitely on his agenda:

1. An unofficial mission designed to thaw America's post-Munich coolness toward the government

CAPTAIN ANTHONY EDEN.

of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

2. Possibly the sounding out of President Roosevelt and others on the participation of the United States in an Anglo-French loan to China.

3. An effort to get the assurance of America that Mr. Roosevelt's "hemisphere defense" policy will not militate against British interests in Latin-America.

Captain Eden, accompanied by his wife, will sail for England December 16.

REPRIEVE GRANTED SLAYER OF BABY

Witnesses Tell Governor Their Testimony at the Trial Was 'Not All True.'

By LAMAR Q. BALL.
Special to The Constitution.

TATTNALL PRISON, REIDS-VILLE, Ga., Dec. 8.—While six negroes condemned to die tomorrow in the electric chair here ate their favorite foods, listened to hymns and heard comforting words from preachers, a last-minute stay of execution was granted a white man scheduled to die with them.

By telephone to Howard B. Gordon, assistant to the prison director, Governor Rivers granted a 30-day respite to Tom Dickerson, Ben Hill county farmer, convicted of strangling his daughter's three-day-old infant.

The Governor telephoned from the executive mansion in Atlanta, speaking to Gordon in the absence of A. M. Anderson, prison director.

Witnesses' Stories.

The Governor told Gordon that several witnesses who had testified at the trial of Dickerson visited him at the capitol today and said
"their testimony was not all true."
The Governor added that the solicitor general will investigate this new development, which stayed the hand of death by law as Dickerson, quiet and resigned to his fate, sat in his solitary cell on the fourth floor of the prison's main building.

Dickerson received news of the respite calmly. Guards reported that he neither expressed outward signs of emotion nor spoke.

News of the respite came after the six negroes, stoically passing their last moments of life, ate their final big meal. Some called for steak. Others requested chicken.
But all found a universal favorite in their dessert—sweet potato pie.

After the meal, the condemned men listened to the prison quarter. Hymns and spirituals were softly intoned, "Steal Away" and
"We Ain't Got Long to Stay Here."

The condemned men were Willie Russell, convicted of killing a Cobb county farmer and his daughter in a crime that stirred racial violence in Smyrna; Jim Henry Williams, Charlie Rucker and Raymond, who must die for presented to executives of the drug concern.

Ten Opportunities Gives Many Chance To Regain Place in World

By RALPH MCGILL.

Ten Christmas Opportunities annually are presented by The Constitution to its readers.

They are presented as an inclusive opportunity to do the finest sort of charity it is possible to do—to give not merely charity but, along with it, the gift of opportunity.

These Ten Opportunities are desperate cases of poverty, illness and despair. Yet, not one of them does not have the opportunity, through this help, to climb back to the position in which they stand on their own feet.

That is one reason it is called an opportunity. It is an opportunity to extend to fellow-beings an opportunity for them to regain their place in the world.

It is the very finest sort of charity. There is nothing to say, of course, against the giving of a

Jack J. Spalding Dies at a Miami Hotel, Closing Long Career of Service to the South

Death Comes to Outstanding Catholic Layman at Age of 82.

By L. A. FARRELL.
Death came at 82 yesterday to Captain Jack J. Spalding, who had to leave school because of frail health at 18, but who lived through three generations in a lifetime of achievements which have stamped his name indelibly in the history of Atlanta and Georgia.

He died in a Miami hotel where for the last 20 years he had sought refuge from the rigors of winter.
The end came unexpectedly, although for several years he had not been in good health.

Mr. Spalding went from his hotel to a sanitarium yesterday for his daily treatment and luncheon.
His health did not appear worse than usual. However, on his return to the hotel he was stricken suddenly. He personally called his physician, who arrived within a few minutes. The physician found Mr. Spalding at the point of death. The end came in another minute or two. The doctor said it was his heart.

As much as any man of his time, Captain Spalding helped build Atlanta. He came here from his native Morganfield, Ky., more than 60 years ago, when this city had a population of only 40,000.
Here he built one of the greatest law practices in the south and helped build one of the greatest cities of the south.

Captain Spalding also was

DRUG COMPANY'S 'ASSETS' VANISH

McKesson and Robbins' $17,000,000 Crude Product Department a 'Shell.'

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(UP)—
The New York Stock Exchange tonight disclosed evidence indicating that assets of the entire drug trading department of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., which earlier today filed a voluntary petition under the bankruptcy act, may be worthless.

At a private hearing convened by the exchange, officials of the drug and liquor corporation testified that assets of the drug department, carried on the books at $17,000,000, may not exist. The department was described as proba-ly a "shell."

It was revealed also that alleged warehouses maintained by the company in Canada apparently were only mailing addresses.

Their testimony also disclosed that the company's inventories were insured by a Wall Street firm and that forged Dun & Bradstreet reports on this firm's rating were presented to executives of the drug concern.

Amateur Traffic Solutions Condemned by Hartsfield

Promises Veto to All Measures That Do Not Have Approval of City's Experts; Raps 'Bellowing' on Floor of Council.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday promised to veto all traffic measures that do not have the approval of the city's traffic experts. "We must have sound planning and engineering to solve the pressing traffic problem," he said. "Nearly everybody without expert training in traffic has a different solution to offer. Some of them may be good, but they can't all be good."

The mayor said he was determined to follow the advice "of those trained to solve traffic problems and who base their recommendations upon expert, proved experiments." He said he was serving this notice on council "right now."

"We are not going to cure our traffic ills by a lot of bellowing on the floor of council," he asserted.

The mayor approved two additional traffic safety ordinances adopted by city council Monday when the new 25-mile-per-hour speed law was passed. One measure provides that vehicles must come to a dead stop before making a right turn on a red light, while the other prohibits parking during rush hours on Marietta street from Forsyth street to Five Points.

He explained he did not believe the latter measure would materially affect congestion in the middle of the day.

"I still think that we ought to bar angle parking," he said. "I think council made a mistake in the compromise on this particular

CHINESE MASSING TO RETAKE CANTON

Envoy Johnson Quits Chungking Monday for U. S. To Make Report.

SHANGHAI, Friday, Dec. 9.—

(UP)—A picked group of Chinese generals commanding 600,000 men has started counter-attacking Japanese armies in South China and has orders to recapture Canton
"at all costs," according to a Chinese military dispatches from Chungking.

The general offensive extends throughout Kwantung province, of which Canton is the capital, the dispatches reported, and is designed to end in reoccupation of the railway from Canton to the British colony of Hongkong which was China's chief munitions line until it was taken by Japanese in October.

Chinese commanders in the offense include Tsai-ting, Ting-kai, who gained an international reputation for his defense of Shanghai in 1932, Chang Fa-kwei, veteran leader of the Cantonese "Ironsides" division, and Chiang Kuang-nai.

A Japanese army spokesman, in commenting on the reports, said he hoped they were untrue since "it would save us the trouble of chasing the Chinese so far into the interior."

United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson will leave Chungking Monday for the United States.
He has been scheduled for home leave for months and it was assumed he would report fully to the State department regarding the situation.

WORK MAY START ON FIRST PROJECTS BY EARLY SPRING

Atlanta To Become Slum Clearance Laboratory of Western Hemisphere,
C. F. Palmer Declares.

GRANT TO BENEFIT 90,000 ILL-HOUSED

Far-Reaching Program
Calls for 2,438 Units
To Cost $2,783 Each.

President Roosevelt yesterday approved a federal loan of $11,- 661,000 to the Atlanta Housing Authority, making available nearly $15,000,000 for four tremendous slum clearance projects here.

The development was hailed by civic and business leaders as a tremendous stimulus to business, while C. F. Palmer, former president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the Authority, called the loan "the biggest single favorable action in the history of our modern city."

Palmer said the Authority will go into action immediately on the program, with a view to starting construction of the four projects as soon as practicable. He added the Authority plans to "make Atlanta the slum clearance laboratory of the western hemisphere."

Total of $14,253,000.
Added to the federal loan of $11,661,000 will be the city's share of $1,429,000 and an additional $1,163,000 to be provided by the Federal Housing Authority, making a total of $14,253,000 available for the projects.

Palmer pointed out that officials still face a mass of detail which must be worked out before actual construction begins. These include completion of plans on which 16 Atlanta architects have been working for the past several months; selection of sites; arrangements for floating $1,429,000 in bonds, which the Authority must provide, and arrangements for tax exemptions by local governmental agencies.

A total of 2,438 dwelling units will be built at a cost of about $2,783 a unit, it was said, a figure considerably lower than the national average of $3,100.

"With the approximately $6,- 000,000 already expended in execution of the Techwood and University low cost housing projects, and the additional $14,253,000, Atlanta already has available more than $20,000,000 in its effort to elevate living conditions, eliminate slums and provide comfortable and decent quarters for its

THREE MEALS A DAY

By SALLY SAVER.

Good food has always been part of traditional Christmas celebrations in every land. . . Did you ever hear of the "Julkapp"—Sweden's Yuletide ceremony? Small gifts, wrapped in huge packages, are brought to the door by one who knocks and runs away before identity can be discovered—and those who receive the present must discard layer after layer of paper before finding a clue to the donor's name. Whether or not you follow the Julkapp ceremony, you'll want to give home-made jams and jellies, fruit cakes and cookies, as gifts this year. Use amusing pottery figures to hold the jellies. Wrap each glass in cellophane, or those gay holiday papers . . . tie with ribbon bows . . . and decorate with mistletoe and holly. Anything from a single jar to a whole assortment of flavors is sure to be welcomed, for everybody on that Christmas list loves good things to eat. Here are some really fine recipes that will be ideal for these home-like Christmas gifts: Grape Jelly from Bottled Juice. 2 cups (1 pound) juice 3/4 cup (1/2 pound) sugar 1/2 bottle fruit pectin Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one-half minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about five glasses (six fluid ounces each). Nut Cookies. 1 cup superfine powdered sugar 1 cup butter 2 eggs, beaten

1 cup nuts, chopped 1 teaspoon baking powder 1/2 teaspoon salt 3 cups flour Cream butter until light and fluffy. Add superfine powdered sugar gradually. Add beaten eggs and then the nuts. Mix baking powder and salt with flour and add to the mixture. Put in cookie press or roll out one-eighth inch thick and cut with cookie cutter. Bake on greased cookie sheet in hot oven 10-15 minutes. String Cookies for Tree. When making cookies, prick holes in them with a fork. When they are baked, they can be strung portion is tested in cold water, remove and add rest of ingredients. Serve warm, poured over desserts.

*Fruited Corn Muffins.

1 cup flour 1 cup cornmeal 1 teaspoon soda 1 teaspoon baking powder 2 tablespoons light brown sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 egg or two yolks 1 cup buttermilk 2 tablespoons fat, melted Mix ingredients. Beat one minute. Half-fill greased muffin pans.

SALLY SAVER'S RECIPE CONTEST.

If color still means anything, then the purple eggplant must be a royal vegetable. It is certainly growing in popularity and new recipes are eagerly tested.

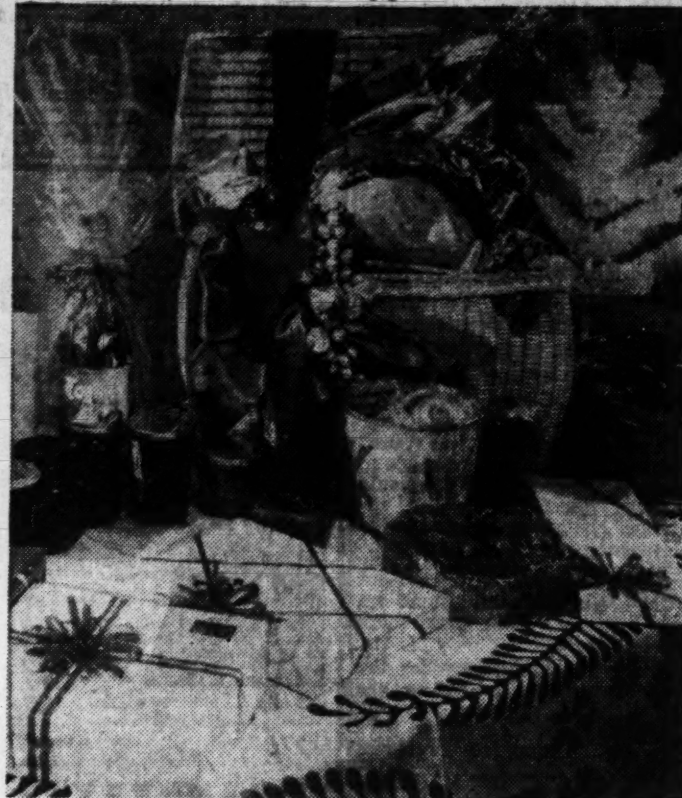

Because of its beautiful color, the eggplant is used lavishly as decoration for the dining room table and for the modern living room. Arrange in a wooden bowl, several eggplants, and some cumquarts or tangerines and see for yourself the rich colors of this ensemble—purple and green, orange and yellow.

In this recipe you combine two good foods and evolve a nutritious, tasty main course for luncheon or dinner. It is suggested by Miss Lillian Stocks, 508 Stewart avenue, S. W., Atlanta.

Eggs Poached on Eggplant.

1 eggplant
6 eggs
1 1/2 cups of cream or tomato sauce
2 1/2 cups of grated cheese
Slice the eggplant, pare, sprinkle with salt and put under a weight. Let stand a few hours, drain and saute in olive oil or butter. Place a slice in an individual au gratin dish and lay on it a poached egg. Then pour around the egg and partly over the eggplant either a cream or a tomato sauce. Sprinkle over all the grated cheese, and put dish in oven or under the flame to brown the cheese.

Eggplant soufflé seems to be the favorite eggplant recipe of many folks. This one, suggested by Mrs. J. B. McDonald, 903 Rosedale road, Atlanta, is simple and perfectly delicious.

Eggplant Soufflé.

1 eggplant, medium size
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup of grated cheese
2 tablespoons of tomato catsup
1 cup of milk
1/2 cup of soft bread crumbs
2 eggs
1 teaspoon of salt
Peel eggplant, dice and cook until tender. Drain and mash well. Melt butter in a saucepan, then stir in the flour slowly until done when they are well browned on top and slip out of the pans easily.

If you beat the batter your muffins are likely to have large holes or tunnels inside and knots or tall peaks on top. And if the baking heat is too slow, the muffins will be soggy and coarse-grained.

Cranberry muffins, a pot of honey and plenty of butter—a fine starter for Sunday breakfast.

Cranberry Muffins.

1 cup cranberries
1/2 cup sugar
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup milk
1/2 cup melted butter
Chop cranberries and sprinkle with half the sugar. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and rest of sugar together. Beat egg slightly, combine with milk and melted butter and add to dry ingredients. Stir only until blended, then fold in cranberries. Transfer to buttered muffin pans and bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Makes 12 medium-sized muffins.

SCHOOL MEMORIES MAY BRING AWARD

'Brother Rat' Contest Offers Prizes for Experiences of Those Days.

Wayne Morris, Eddie Albert and Ronald Reagan, playing first classmen at V. M. I., get into plenty of trouble when their girls, played by Fricilla Lane, Jane Bryan and Jane Wyman, come to town for the big baseball game and prom, in the motion picture "Brother Rat," opening today at the Fox theater.

But as usual, they all lived and found a way out of their difficulties.

You undoubtedly had trials which seemed just as difficult in your school or college life. What were they? Do you remember? They meant everything to you then, but now, you may look back at them and laugh.

However, memory of these situations, serious, comical, delightful or heart-breaking, may mean added Christmas money for you.

Write in 50 words or less, the experience in your school life which most impressed itself upon your memory, and send it in by 10 o'clock this morning to the "Brother Rat" Contest Editor of The Constitution. Cash prizes of $15, $10 and $5 will be given for the best three "experiences," and 10 pairs of guest tickets to see "Brother Rat" opening today at the Fox theater, to the 10 runners-up.

CLOUDY AND COLDER FORECAST FOR TODAY

Overcast skies with slightly lower temperature were predicted for Atlanta today by the U. S. Weather Bureau. Rain was slated for this section, but the weatherman was of the opinion that the downfall would be slight.

The temperature, which yesterday ranged between 46 degrees and 53 degrees is expected to range downward from a high of 60 degrees to a low of 38 degrees. The sky will remain cloudy for a great part of the day, according to George W. Mindling, meteorologist.

For Sunday Breakfast

Good muffins don't just happen, you have to make them carefully. First, always keep in mind this rule: Mix well, but do not beat. Mix all the dry ingredients—the flour, baking powder, salt, sugar, etc.—then pour in the milk, egg and melted fat and stir quickly. The whole mixing process should be finished in 18 seconds at the outside. Muffins are ready for baking when the liquid has moistened the dry ingredients; any small lumps will bake out.

Bake them at once in well greased pans, for 20 to 25 minutes in a moderate oven (from 350 to 400 degrees). The muffins are smooth. Add milk, beating well. Stir in the eggplant and add cheese, bread crumbs, onion, catsup, salt and lightly beaten egg yolks. Lastly, fold in the egg whites which have been stiffly beaten. Bake in a greased baking pan set in another pan of hot water for 45 minutes.

Mrs. Theo Vaughan, of Franklin, Ga., sends her favorite recipe. It is a nice mock oyster soup, and is quite different.

Eggplant Soup.

1 eggplant, medium size
1 quart of sweet milk
2 tablespoons of butter
Salt and pepper to taste
Peel and cut up eggplant in small strips. Boil in small amount of water for 15 or 20 minutes or until tender. Drain off water, if any, and then put in milk, butter, salt and pepper, and boil for 3 or 4 minutes. Serve hot with crackers.

INDUSTRY OFFERS PEACE TO NEW DEAL

Manufacturers Unanimously Approve Platform Co-operating With Government.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers late today unanimously approved a 1939 platform urging co-operation with the government. Without argument on the floor, the convention approved a program drawn up only after a bitter fight behind closed doors in the resolutions committee.

The faction which favored co-operation with the New Deal succeeded in:

- (1) Preventing open criticism of the whole policy of the reciprocal trade agreements.
- (2) Striking out a proposal to revise the Wagner act.
- (3) Eliminating another proposal to abolish special federal regulatory commissions.

KUHN HEARS DIES DENOUNCE BUND

Nazi Leader Appears at Open Meeting in New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—In the presence of the German-American Bund leader, Fritz Kuhn, the chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities today shouted a denunciation of the Bund.

After an attack upon Communism and all "un-Americanisms," Representative Martin Dies, Democrat, Texas, starting in the direction of Kuhn's table, cried out that the Bund was seeking to undermine the country by preaching class and religious hatred.

Dies spoke at a luncheon given in his honor by the New York State Economic Council. Kuhn, accompanied by eight persons, appeared at the affair with the explanation that he had come to "hear what Dies has to say." The meeting was open to all.

CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION IS AGAIN ATTACKED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Colonel Latham Reed, a former army officer, accused the American Civil Liberties Union today of defending atheism and the right of an individual to advocate murder, assassination and revolution.

Testifying before the Dies committee, Reed named Secretary Ickes, of the Interior Department, and Felix Frankfurter, a prominent possibility for the present supreme court vacancy, as members of the union. He said Ickes made a radical speech before the union called "Nations in Nightshirts."

Father Will Let Christmas Pass, Then Decide Fate of Stricken Girl

Amputation of Child's Leg, Afflicted With Cancer, Provides Lone and Meager Hope That She May Enjoy Another Year.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—When the last Christmas carol fades away and 7-year-old Dorothy Lewis has left her toys for bed, then and only then will the little girl's father decide her fate—a sentence of almost certain doom or an operation, with death a 10-1 probability.

Surgeons have told him the decision is his alone.

Amputation of the child's right leg, afflicted with sarcoma, or cancer of the thigh bone, would give her a meager chance to live.

Without an operation, they said, death would be virtually certain in from eight to 10 months.

And he must decide soon. "But I can't decide yet," said the anguished father, William Lewis, a Queens Park department employee.

"I cannot look at her happy, innocent face now when she is looking forward so eagerly to Christmas—and decide.

"I could not bear to watch her on Christmas Day if I knew I had decided on her life, one way or another.

"God knows, it is a terrible decision to make."

His wife died a few months ago after an operation. Lewis recalled as he spoke in shaken terms of his ordeal—alone to resolve what may be a life-or-death sentence for the little daughter with blond curls and blue laughing eyes.

On Saturday, Dorothy will celebrate her eighth birthday, with a party planned by neighborhood children who have vowed to hide any intimation of her plight.

"Somehow, against all hope, she wants one thing more than anything else for her birthday," the father said. "She wants Eddie Cantor and Kate Smith to be there.

WHITE HOUSE PLANS NEW REFORM DRIVE

New Congress To Get Program of Government Reorganization.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A government reorganization program was penciled on the legislative slate for the new congress at a White House conference today.

Chairman Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, of a senate reorganization committee, said after the conference that he was "sure" another attempt would be made to persuade congress that it should empower the President to reorganize, abolish or merge executive agencies of the government.

CHICAGO MILK GROUP SEEKS U. S. SETTLEMENT

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Council for the Associated Milk Dealers of Chicago suggested today the possibility of a settlement in the anti-trust conspiracy case brought by the Government against many leaders and corporations in the milk industry. Loy N. Macintosh, attorney for the dealers, made the suggestion when 43 individuals and 14 organizations indicted in the case were called for arraignment before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

"A MILLION THANKS For Teaching Me This about COLDS"

"IT CERTAINLY IS WONDERFUL to be able to face trouble without worrying myself sick when colds threaten the health and happiness of my family. I say, a million thanks to Vicks for teaching me the way to deal with colds."

That is the voice of mothers—your neighbors among them—who have learned by experience to depend on Vicks Plan, which emphasizes the importance of proper personal care and the use of specialized medications for relief of symptoms in different types and stages of colds.

When colds threaten—at the first nasal irritation, snifle, or sneeze—they use Vicks Va-tro-nol to help prevent many a cold from developing. When a cold does get by all precautions, they use Vicks VapoRub to relieve its discomforts.

This famous plan was developed by Vicks chemists and their medical consultants, who have continuously studied the problem of colds for nearly half a century. It comes to you doubly proved:

1. Proved in one of the largest series of clinical tests ever made on colds—17,353 men, women, and children took part in these tests. 37 doctors were on the supervisory staff. In this great clinic, Vicks Plan sharply reduced the number and length of colds—cut sickness from colds more than half—cut school absences due to colds even more.
2. Proved by actual everyday use in millions of homes like yours.

This proof speaks for itself. Vicks Plan may do less for you—or it may do even more. But with such a record it certainly is worth a trial. It is easy to follow in any home. Full directions in each package of Va-tro-nol or VapoRub.

To Help PREVENT Many Colds

Va-tro-nol is specialized medication for the nose and upper throat, where 3 out of 4 colds start. You feel the tingle as this stimulating medication goes right to work and aids Nature's own defenses against colds. Used at the very first nasal irritation, warning snifle or sneeze, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds from developing. So keep it handy and use it early.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

To EASE Discomfort of Colds

VapoRub is the standby of most mothers for relieving misery of colds. Massaged on throat, chest, and back, VapoRub works two ways at once: (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Its medicated vapors are inhaled direct to the irritated air-passages. This quickly loosens phlegm—clears the air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion—and you soon feel comfortable again.

TEN OPPORTUNITIES BEST OF CHARITIES

be, through these opportunities, a whole year in which every day will find those being helped thanking God for those who have come to their assistance.

Worry Hardest at Night.

In the hours of night, when worry comes at us the hardest, there will be struggling mothers and small children, who will be able to close their eyes and sleep again knowing that the morrow is secure; that on waking there will not be the desperate effort to care for that day.

There will be not just a basket, but a basket, figuratively speaking, every day of the year.

Last year some of the Ten Opportunities were able to climb out of their situations and stand on their own feet. This year there will be others.

This is an opportunity for the man, the woman or for groups who wish to give where it really will be of help, to give the perfect gift. Groups of employees can, through each one's subscribing a few cents each week, take one of these opportunities and know each day, as they go to their jobs, they are providing an opportunity for someone less fortunate to come back to a place where they can care for themselves. Individuals who wish to know where their money goes may, through one of these opportunities, place it so it works every day, every week, every month of the year.

Gift That Few Can Give.

Through this gift, one gives not merely money, but opportunity—the gift that few can give. These cases are studied. The Constitution investigates and selects tested, approved cases so that the public, which so generously answers each year, may know them to be real opportunities.

It would be an easy matter to write of the cases, to say that in this family there is a mother, deserted and ill, with small children. It would be easy to write of their utter and complete dependence on others of the human race. It would be easy to write of sickness and sorrow and of despair.

These are stories of that which is still greater because they are stories of opportunities.

The Constitution presents them—Ten Opportunities—ten families which between now and Christmas are depending on their fellow man to make them able to start the climb back to a place in the scheme of things—of work and jobs.

Each is one of THE Ten Opportunities of the year to give the perfect Christmas gift—Opportunity!

FRANCO-ITALIAN RUPTURE DEEPENS

former coalition of Daladier's Radical-Socialists with Communists and Socialists—dead. Ferdinand Laurent declared the Leftist coalition had cost France 137,000,000,000 franc (about $3,562,000,000).

He called for a strong government, saying that "lamentable incidents in Italy have shown the need for a union of all Frenchmen who believe in order."

Conservative Deputy Felix Grat declared there must be no question of cession of colonial territories "which would permit Germany to get a foothold in our overseas possessions" and demanded government assurances that "the integrity of our empire will no longer be menaced."

The French-Italian tension mounted on a day in which German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop left for home after signing the good neighbor pact for Reichsfuehrer Hitler and consulting with French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet ostensibly on means of assuring European peace.

Several French observers reported Hitler would call an Italian-German conference at Munich as the result of a reported demand by Premier Mussolini that Germany support her partner in the Rome-Berlin axis in the clamor for Tunisia.

TUNIS AN ARMED CAMP TO QUELL AGITATION

TUNIS, Tunisia, December 8.—(AP)—Thronges of Italians, French and Arabs seethed through the streets of Tunis tonight in demonstrations fired by the Fascist clamor over Tunisia.

The French government strengthened the police with armed patrols from the interior and ordered heavy reinforcements of mobile guards to Tunis from the neighboring French Algeria.

The Italian consul general, M. Silimban, protested against the anti-Italian outbreaks and was understood to have been assured the French police had been commanded to restore strict order.

Italian residents were reported to have warned that they would draw up a self-defense corps if the anti-Italian disorders continued, but French officials denied this was true.

Many demonstrators—Italians, French and natives—were arrested today, but demonstrations continued tonight with roving bands colliding intermittently with the police.

The strains of rival songs, the French "Marseillaise" and the Fascist "Giovinezza," sounded through Tunis' streets.

All Italian business houses as well as the consulate-general were placed under heavy day and night guard and the French administration turned out an imposing display of strength.

Horseguards and police patrolled the streets; troops were confined to their barracks, and mobile guards were called in from Algeria.

NAZI TREATMENT OF JEWS DEPLORED BY PEOPLE OF U.S.

Gallup Survey of Nation Finds Vote To Be More Than 9-to-1 Against Anti-Semitic Measures.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The Nazi treatment of Jews in Germany, against which many American leaders, including President Roosevelt, have lodged strong protest, is disapproved by an overwhelming majority of American voters in every section of the country and of every race and religion.

A national cross-section survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion found the vote of condemnation so nearly unanimous as to constitute one of the most decisive expressions of opinion in any of the more than 800 surveys conducted by the Institute in the last three years.

The results clearly point to the fact that in this country there is virtually none of the kind of anti-Semitism manifested in Germany today.

The Institute's survey measured the attitude of the country not only toward the treatment of Jews in Germany but also toward the treatment of Catholics. It found almost unanimous disapproval of the Reich's anti-Catholic policies.

700 Field Agents. Through a nation-wide staff of 700 field investigators, the Institute put two questions to a cross-section of voters in every state: "Do you approve or disapprove of the Nazis' treatment of Jews in Germany?" and "Do you approve or disapprove of the Nazis' treatment of Catholics in Germany?" The vote on each question was as follows:

Approve Treatment of Jews	6%
Disapprove	94%
Approve Treatment of Catholics	3%
Disapprove	97%

There is a striking unanimity of opinion by religious groups on both the Jewish issue and the Catholic issue. The survey found virtually 100 per cent of Catholics disapproving treatment of Catholics in Germany, as might be expected, and 97 per cent of Protestants likewise deploring Catholic persecution.

ordinance, but I am signing it in the hope it will help some."

As the mayor urged a fair trial of the new speed limit, Phil C. Ebeling, of Dayton, Ohio, president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, addressing a meeting of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce, heartily endorsed Atlanta's experiment to reduce traffic deaths by reducing the speed limit.

He declared a similar plan in Dayton had "proved very effective."

"Both Providence, R. I., and Memphis, Tenn., saved lives and made themselves the outstanding cities of the nation by this simple process," the mayor said. "Both the city and state traffic experts recommend it."

Having recited that 32 states prohibit a greater city speed than 25 miles an hour in residential sections, the mayor declared:

"Surely with this nation-wide experience, and backed up by our local traffic officials, both council and the people should be willing to try it and stop the ever-increasing traffic murders on our streets."

"Here we are just getting ready to educate the public on the new limit. It takes days to paint signs and weeks to install them, and yet, before the ink is dry on the ordinance, another member of council serves notice that he is going to change it again."

"What chance have we to accomplish anything under such circumstances?"

Narrow Streets. "There are narrow streets all over Atlanta, where a speed of 20 miles an hour is dangerous to life, and yet we have been permitting 35 miles per hour."

"Our traffic problems will never be solved by 18 men fighting among themselves and disregarding the appeals of their own traffic officials."

"It is not pleasant to me to have to undergo all sorts of petty politics and foolish criticism."

"Why should we have to fight politicians to save human lives? Fifty-nine people died on Atlanta's streets and now we are engaged in a grim struggle to hold this record from being exceeded. What an awful thought that five or six more people are already condemned to die in Atlanta, and what an awful thing it is to have citizens willing to see it in order to save a minute or so."

The mayor was presumably hitting at Councilman J. Allen Couch, who announced Wednesday he plans to seek passage of a series of traffic reform proposals at the meeting of council December 19, in the statement referring to "another member of the council."

Meanwhile, the Atlanta Citizens Traffic Committee began its campaign to acquaint citizens with details of the traffic plan when Captain W. J. Cordes, of the Military Order of the World War, addressed a meeting of parents, teachers and upper classmen yesterday at Bass Junior High school.

STATE OFFICIALS SPLIT OVER TAX ON CORPORATIONS

Revenue Department Con- tests Appeals Board's Ruling That Exempts Domesticated Firms.

The State Department of Revenue crossed swords with the Georgia Board of Tax Appeals yesterday on the point of whether stock of a domesticated corporation is subject to taxation.

Acting in a case brought by Miss Rose Rich and the Atlantic Steel Company against Revenue Commissioner Grady Head, the tax appeal board ruled such stock was not subject to taxation under the new state intangibles law.

court from the tax board ruling, pointing out such action was available to either party under the intangibles act in a tax contest.

Courtesy to Suffer. Zellars said the ruling of the appeals board would cost the state, counties, municipalities and school districts between $200,000 and $300,000 a year. He asserted counties and cities would be the heaviest losers because the intangible tax act was passed to help reimburse them for homestead and personal property tax exemptions.

"The proceeds of the intangible taxes are divided in the same ratio as prevails in the distribution of ad valorem taxes," said Zellars. "This means that the state participates in proportion to the ratio of the state tax of five mills compared to the county tax of an average 20 mills and the millage allowed the cities and school districts. Therefore, the local governments are the heaviest losers under the ruling."

Coca-Cola Not Affected. He contended that the exemption in the tax act specifies only corporations "organized under the laws of Georgia, and corporations organized under the laws of another state can never get such classification."

Jack Glenn, of Courts & Company, estimated the ruling would affect Georgia stockholders of 12 large corporations. Coca-Cola stock is not affected. A domesticated corporation, it was explained, is one organized under the laws of another state but with holdings and operations in Georgia which have led it to domesticate here.

MEDICAL BODY ELECTS. LAFAYETTE, Ga., Dec. 8.—Dr. S. B. Kitchens, of Lafayette, has been elected president of the Walker County Medical Association, with Dr. B. C. Hale, as vice president, and Dr. R. C. Shepard, secretary and treasurer.

$14,253,000 FUND FOR CITY HOUSING

low bracket income citizens," Palmer said.

"It is the objective of the Atlanta Housing Authority to make Atlanta the slum clearance laboratory of the entire western hemisphere, and the allocation made available to us today by President Roosevelt and Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, will go a long way to give us the start we need."

"Atlanta is the logical leader in this field. We should avail ourselves of every opportunity to clear the deadwood out of our blighted areas. This $14,000,000 will revitalize business, will convert blighted territories into happy and productive areas and will do more to keep Atlanta moving at the head of the procession of progress and prosperity than any other one thing that has happened here in a long time."

"The success of our efforts to make Atlanta a national testing ground will depend largely on the cooperation of our citizens. The matter rests in their hands. If they are cooperative, we can make other improvements even in addition to the ones already authorized. If they are not cooperative, I doubt that we will have the success to which this movement is entitled."

To Pay Fair Price. "We do not propose to depress prices of real estate. Neither do we propose to buy properties on an inflated real estate market. We are prepared to pay a fair price for properties, but if there is any attempt to hold up the authority, we shall be forced to select other sites."

"There are nine badly blighted areas in Atlanta, and we have four projects on which we begin work probably in the early spring."

About 30,000 families in Atlanta representing about 90,000 persons live in sub-standard homes, according to surveys. The new units will provide homes for a substantial number of these families but will still leave about 21,000 families without proper housing.

In concentrated Atlanta slum areas, there are 48,651 of the 90,000 ill-housed persons. Of this number, 18,423 are whites and 30,228 negroes.

"We do not plan to start all of these projects at once," Palmer added. "If we did so, we would infuse building material prices to such an extent that other construction would be prohibitive. It is our desire to get the maximum results in a healthy growth and a sound prosperity from these funds. To do that we will perform the work over a period of about two years."

SIX NEGROES DIE

Killing a police chief at Jackson; Arthur Perry and Arthur Mack, sentenced for the slaying of a watchman at the Columbus fair grounds.

Two negro preachers gave what cheer they could. One of the preachers is an inmate. The other lives in Reidsville, seven miles by paved highway to the gate of the concrete and steel institution—which looks like a modern, efficient plant—set in the center of 10,000 acres of desolate, scrubby, south Georgia countryside.

Five of the condemned men occupied "death cells" in the main tower of the penitentiary. The tower rises cupola-fashion, from the roof of the fourth floor, the main building. At its base are the five death cells, each with a window.

Above in the tower is the execution chamber, a room 14 by 18 feet square, where the heavy, painted oak electric chair is situated.

No Women Executed. The chair and its predecessor have taken the lives of 175 men—and no women—since electrocution was adopted in Georgia in 1924. But never has it been called on to kill so many in a single day.

A passage leads from the death cells to the death chamber. This is the "last mile" the doomed men will walk tomorrow, probably between noon and 1 o'clock. It is here that they will obtain a final glimpse of the outside world.

Prison officials said tonight the executions will take about an hour and a half, or about 15 minutes for each man. This time will be spent in the walk to the death chamber, the seating in the chair, and the other macabre details necessary before electric current sends death coursing through the bodies of the condemned men.

Five men are needed to perform the legal execution of one.

To Stop Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation's got you down so you feel heavy, tired and doped—it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble. If you eat only the things most people do, the chances are that a very simple fact causes your constipation—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, eat crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran contains both "bulk" and the intestinal tonic, vitamin B. And it's not a drug, not a medicine! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

RIVERS CONFERS WITH DELEGATIONS ON COURT VACANCY

Capitol Rumors Concern Imposing List of Names; Elevation of Atkinson Among Leading Reports

By The Associated Press.

The question as to who shall succeed the late Chief Justice Richard B. Russell remained in the speculative stage yesterday as Governor Rivers scheduled through Monday more conferences with delegations urging appointment of their candidates for the job.

A long list of names figured prominently in capitol rumors along with the discussion of possible shifts within the state judiciary that would promote an associate justice of the supreme court to the post of chief justice.

Names mentioned in capitol circles as Rivers and advisors conferred among themselves and with visiting delegations included: Charles S. Reid, Atlanta lawyer and former chairman of the state Democratic executive committee; State Senator Paul Lindsay, of Atlanta; Orrin Roberts, Monroe lawyer and former law partner of ex-Governor Clifford Walker; Judge W. E. Thomas, of Thomasville; and Judge R. E. of Tifton.

One of the largest delegations to call on the Governor was from the

Pear Tree Bears 2 Kinds of Apples

DUBLIN, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP)—L. E. Harrison is growing two kinds of apples on a pear tree. The tree has stood on his farm near here for 20 years without bearing a pear, Harrison says. So he grafted some red and some yellow apple sprouts to it.

The tree has both red and yellow apples this fall. Harrison says he will keep trying to make the tree bear pears—if it takes 20 more years.

Albany judicial circuit in behalf of Judge B. C. Gardner, of Camilla. Perhaps one of the most persistently circulated reports at the capitol was that Governor Rivers might elect to elevate Associate Justice Samuel Atkinson, of Brunswick, ranking member of the supreme court, to the post of chief justice, shift Justice Nash Broyles, of the court of appeals, to the supreme court and replace him with Attorney General M. S. Yeomans.

Ellis Annall, an assistant attorney general, was mentioned as a possibility to succeed Yeomans in such a case.

Reports also linked Judge Homer Sutton, of the court of appeals, with a supreme court appointment and Judge Ben Gaillard, of Gainesville, with the court of appeals.

Governor Rivers said a press of business prevented him from attending dedications at the new University of Georgia buildings at Athens today and a real estate meeting at Macon.

UNIVERSITY SYSTEM NEEDS DISCLOSED

Maintenance of Units Declared State's Greatest Problem by Nix.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Need for maintenance of the University of Georgia system was described today by Abit Nix, member of the board of regents, as the "greatest problem facing educational and legislative leaders in the state."

In a dedication address at ceremonies turning over keys to seven buildings at the university plant here, Nix asserted: "We have magnificent possibilities, we have the select men and women of the state, but a paltry sum for maintenance. Provision of funds for maintenance is the big job ahead. We must sell legislative bodies of this state on this need."

Nix replaced Governor Rivers as principal speaker. Rivers was unable to attend because of press of his business in Atlanta.

The Athens attorney recalled growth of the university since he entered it 30 years ago, citing increase in enrollment from 500 to 3,400 and the "tremendous growth in physical plant."

University President Harmon W. Caldwell spoke in appreciation of the work done by the board of regents and the state legislature in making possible the building program.

Chancellor Sanford said "facilities of the system must be extended beyond the classroom and assist agriculture and other related fields wherever possible."

R. H. Driftmier, supervising engineer for the regents, also participated in the dedication. Keys of the buildings were accepted by Dr. Sanford for the regents and by Dr. Caldwell for the university.

The buildings were constructed in the last two years at a cost of some $800,000. They include: Biology, costing $93,000; agricultural extension, $80,000; men's dormitory, $50,000; women's dormitory, $102,000; language, $130,000; demonstration school, $203,000; forestry, $120,000.

The buildings were constructed with PWA and state funds. Four were built in 1937 and were ready for occupancy that fall; the biological, agricultural and the two dormitory buildings.

The three newest buildings, begun last spring, are the forestry, language and demonstration buildings. Construction for two more buildings, a dormitory for men on the main campus and one for women on the agricultural campus, is to go forward this week.

DEDICATION OF BUILDING IN AUGUSTA SET TODAY
AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 8.—Dedication exercises for the new classroom clinic building at the University of Georgia School of Medicine here will be held at 12 o'clock tomorrow in the Dugas auditorium. Dr. E. E. Murphy, professor of clinical medicine and lecturer in preventive medicine at the school, will make the principal address.

Regent George Hains, of Augusta, will welcome the guests and preside. The building will be presented to Chancellor S. V. Sanford by H. T. Cole, regional director of the Public Works Administration. After the exercises, guests will inspect the building.

Emory Presents Duo - Drama --- 'King's Dilemma'

Cleverly, and at times brilliantly acted, "The King's Dilemma" was vastly enjoyed last night by a large audience in Glenn Memorial auditorium as the Coffey-Miller Players presented the duo-drama, under auspices of the Emory University Student Lecture Association.

The drama was presented by Jess Coffey and Martha Miller. Coffey gave a fine interpretation of "King Henry the Eighth," while Miss Miller sympathetically enacted his fourth wife, "Anna of Cleves."

Elaborate and authentic costumes, humorous and clever dialogue, and excellent stage settings combined to make a performance that was well done in all respects. The performance was the third number in the Lecture group's season. "Shadows Across the Throne," dealing with incidents in the lives of Queen Elizabeth and Mary Stuart, will be presented at 8:15 o'clock tonight by the Coffey-Miller Players.

Christmas Group Announces Plan To Avoid Duplicating Aid to Needy

Yule Committee of Social Planning Council Urges Co-ordination Among Those Organizations Who Spread Yuletide Spirit Among Unfortunates.

A plan of thoughtful Christmas giving to those who face a cheerless holiday season through unemployment, illness or other cause, has been worked out by the committee on Christmas activities of the Social Planning Council and submitted to scores of organizations throughout Atlanta which sponsor Christmas activities, it was announced today.

W. A. Parker, chairman of the committee, said members had been working for months on plans for co-ordination to insure giving in the true Christmas spirit.

The central idea of the plan is to prevent duplication and stretch available funds as far as possible, and at the same time permit families to enjoy Christmas in the privacy of their own home according to their own family tradition.

A folder describing the plan has been prepared and is being distributed to interested persons and organizations throughout the city.

In addition, letters have been sent out to ministers and church leaders by Dr. C. R. Stauffer, president of the Christian Council, and Father.

The Christmas committee is a year-round organization of the Social Planning Council which works throughout the year to make Christmas giving most effective in meeting the community need at the holiday season. The committee has set up a clearing house to assist organizations and individuals planning some Christmas activity. This assistance is available to anyone who telephones JA. 9853.

The pamphlet suggests that anyone planning to help a family Christmas should guard against duplication by calling the Christmas Bureau, JA. 3553, to make sure that no one else is making similar provision for the family.

POST OFFICE ADDS LARGE YULE FORCE
511 Extra Workers Will Spur Flow of Mail.

To facilitate the delivery of holiday mail, 511 additional persons have been employed by the Atlanta post office. Included are clerks, carriers, laborers and truck drivers.

Postal employees will observe Christmas holidays both Sunday, December 25, and Monday, December 26. Postmaster L. F. Livingston said. Only special delivery mail will be handled.

To offset this, the post office will work full eight-hour shifts Saturday, December 17, and Saturday, December 24. Six additional stamp clerks will be placed on duty at the main post office and two additional at each classified substation.

ATLANTA REALTOR HONORED FOR SALE

Sharp Wall Awarded Alvin Cates Trophy at Macon Convention.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP)—The Macon Real Estate Board received two awards tonight for outstanding work during the past year and Sharp Wall, Atlanta realtor, received a trophy for having made the most outstanding sale.

The awards were made at a banquet of the Georgia Real Estate Association meeting here for the annual two-day convention. Paul C. Maddox, of Atlanta, president of the Georgia group, presented the Atlanta Tile & Trust Company trophy to the local board "for the most outstanding work done for the state group."

Another trophy, the R. R. Otis cup, was presented to the Macon realtors "as a result of outstanding work for city, county and state."

Mr. Wall received the Alvin Cates trophy. He is head of the Wall Realty Company of Atlanta.

CARDENAS TO SEIZE LANDS.

SAVANNAH, Dec. 8.—(P)—Georgia loses a "most distinguished citizen" and the church a "devoted son" by the death of Captain Jack J. Spalding, of Atlanta, in Miami today, the Rt. Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, bishop of Savannah-Atlanta, said here tonight.

"Captain Spalding bore the marks of true loftiness of soul because of his deep, sincere faith and child-like piety. His faith indeed was the guiding star of his life."

"Captain Spalding leaves behind him the memory of a life nobly lived that will linger as a benediction, as it will always be an inspiration to us all. May his gentle soul rest in peace!"

Young Lawyer Who Grew to Leadership in Life of City

The accompanying photos show Captain Jack J. Spalding as he appeared at various stages of his brilliant career. In the picture above he is shown as he looked at 21 when he came to Atlanta to launch a legal practice.

In reading print the eye depends mostly on the tops of words, as you can prove by covering the upper, and then the lower, part of a printed line.

JACK J. SPALDING DIES AT AGE OF 82

known as "Judge" and "Colonel." He was the mentor of Georgia's Democracy, having attended more Democratic national conventions than any other party leader. He was dean of the city's bar. He was one of the nation's outstanding Catholic laymen, a Knight of St. Gregory the Great, a Knight of Malta, and a winner of Notre Dame's coveted Lactaria medal.

The Roman Catholic church, which found in him one of its strongest advocates ever to rise in the south—after conferring on him the highest honors it awards a layman in life, also signally honored him in death. From Savannah, the Rt. Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, bishop of the Savannah-Atlanta diocese, announced a special dispensation to permit holding of the funeral in the new Church of Christ the King on Peachtree road, an edifice which Captain Spalding helped build and which Catholic leaders said last night would stand as a memorial to him and J. J. Haverty, his lifelong friend and neighbor.

First Service in Church. It will be the first service of any kind held in the new church, which will not be dedicated for several weeks. Bishop O'Hara himself will chant a pontifical requiem mass, assisted by the pastor, Father Joseph E. Moylan, and a large delegation of priests from the Savannah-Atlanta diocese.

The death of Mr. Spalding drew expressions of sadness from scores of political and church leaders. Governor Rivers paid high official and personal tribute, while Archbishop John Francis Rummel, of New Orleans, spoke for the Catholic church.

The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning. The body is expected to arrive here tomorrow from Miami, accompanied by the attorney's son, Hughes Spalding, who left for the Florida city immediately upon learning of his father's death.

Members of Mr. Haverty's family said last night that he had not been informed of his friend's death. "Mr. Haverty was slightly ill today and we deemed it best not to tell him of Mr. Spalding's death until tomorrow," a member of the Haverty family said. "We were apprehensive of Mr. Haverty's reaction."

No history of Atlanta could be written without being colored with the activities of Mr. Spalding in the last 50 years. No story of his life could be written without entwining the history of the city. Through the years he built himself, his church and his city.

Born in Kentucky. Mr. Spalding was born at Morganfield, Ky., in August, 1856, the son of a distinguished Kentucky family. He received his education in a log cabin community school in Union county on the banks of the Ohio river and in a Catholic school at Morganfield. Later he attended St. Louis University and Seton Hall College at South Orange, N. J. He was forced to abandon his studies at Seton Hall because of his health.

He contracted typhoid fever during an epidemic at South Orange and began to read a book on Blackstone while convalescing at his father's farm. He became so enamored of the law that when he had recovered, he went into his father's office and took it up in earnest.

The Spalding home was on a farm several miles from Morganfield. In those days there was great rivalry among country and city boys, a rivalry which often led to open combat. Jack Spalding was the chosen leader of the country boys, and for his exploits in maneuvering his followers against the city rivals they gave him the title of "captain," a title which he held throughout the years. Asked where he got the title of "captain," he always replied "from the country boys."

On December 18, 1877, even before he was admitted to the bar, Mr. Spalding was married to Miss Elizabeth Hughes. Miss Hughes was a Methodist and the wedding took place only after strenuous objections of both families had been overridden.

For years, Mr. Spalding accompanied his wife to her church and she accompanied him to his. Later, she began taking instruction and joined the Catholic church, and at the time of her death, ten years ago, held high place herself in Catholic lay councils.

The romance of the Spaldings, which continued through their more than 50 married years, was a love known to all Atlantans. The Spalding home, "Deerland," on Peachtree road, was a house of entrancing serenity. During Mrs. Spalding's lifetime there was almost continuous open house and but few Atlantans of prominence had not been entertained there.

Yet to all who visited the household, even after the couple had reached their declining years, the outstanding fact was the never-ending romance of its master and mistress.

Journey Southward. The Spaldings came to Atlanta on January 4, 1882, more than 56 years ago. The "Captain" used to delight in telling of his journey into the deep south. They made the trip by horse and buggy, by packet and several railroads, the last of which was the historic old Western & Atlantic.

Atlanta had been host to an exposition a year or two before the Spaldings' arrival, and a number of young lawyers who had come for the fair had stayed on in search of fame and fortune. With and against these the tall, young lawyer cast his lot. He and two other young men hired a single room in the old James building, dividing the janitorial duties which comprised most of their work.

In the mid-eighties Mr. Spalding had taken a business course and studied bookkeeping. Among the very few cases to reach his desk was one involving a business house which found itself in financial difficulties. Young Spalding was appointed what then was known as an assignee and which now would be called a receiver.

The young lawyer's knowledge acquired in business college stood him in good stead, and to the amazement of all concerned, he was able to pay off all obligations and return something to the owners.

Grady Article. The late Henry W. Grady heard of the achievement and wrote about it in The Constitution. It soon developed there were other firms in need of a lawyer with business acumen, and the Grady article promptly lifted young Spalding from the struggling lawyer class. In effect, he was "made."

Jack Spalding later formed a partnership with Alex King, who was later to become solicitor general of the United States. At his death he was a judge of the United States circuit court of appeals.

After Mr. King left him to become a nation-wide authority on business law, Mr. Spalding had for his partner E. Marvin Underwood, who became an assistant attorney general of the United States during the Wilson administration, and is now federal district judge for northern Georgia.

Retires From Firm. After Judge Underwood went to Washington, Mr. Spalding headed the firm of Spalding, MacDougald & Sibley, into which the late Haines H. Hargett later went as a partner. Mr. Hargett died in 1932. Several years later the elder Mr. Spalding retired, although remaining as adviser for the firm.

During his early days in Atlanta, Mr. Spalding was one of the originators of the Cotton States Exposition, held here in 1895. He was chief counsel for the exposition, and carried it to a conclusion without a judgment being rendered against it. During the period he was elected without opposition to the Fulton county commission in order that he might carry on the work of the

North Pole Warmer, Says Soviet Bureau

MOSCOW, Dec. 8.—(UP)—The North Pole is warming up, the Soviet weather bureau reported today.

Ten years of observations in the Arctic, according to the bureau, shows that surface water temperature is higher each year and ice correspondingly decreasing.

The bureau said it was not known whether the trend was periodic or progressive.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO CIVIC LEADER

Church and Lay Personalities Express Sorrow at Death of Spalding.

Leaders of church and state joined last night in tributes to the late Jack J. Spalding. Archbishop John Francis Rummel, of New Orleans, spoke officially for the church, and Governor Rivers mourned the lawyer's passing.

"In the death of Captain Spalding," Governor Rivers said, "I have lost a valiant friend, and the people of the state and nation have suffered the loss of one of their most distinguished citizens."

Services to Party. The loss of his services to the Democratic party and to the cause of humane and progressive government will be irreparable. Throughout my public career I looked on Captain Spalding and the late Clark Howell Sr., as Georgia's outstanding Democrats whom all factions loved and respected.

"In the national conventions of his chosen party, Captain Spalding distinguished himself as a noble son, and his love, intelligence and fine standards of Christianity have enshrined him in the hearts of the people of the entire country."

"Outstanding as a lawyer, philanthropist, scholar and Christian gentleman, he was unafraid of duty, and his life was imbued with a desire to serve God and mankind. No finer example could be set for future generations. Having lived a noble life, he leaves a noble heritage."

Archbishop Mourns. In New Orleans, Archbishop Rummel said Mr. Spalding's death was a loss not only to the "state of Georgia but the entire country."

"He was," said the archbishop, fair. This post, together with one year as county attorney of Union county, Kentucky, was the only public office he ever held.

It was while advocating the exposition that Mr. Spalding first brought the late Booker T. Washington into prominence and arranged the first speech the negro leader made before a white audience.

Mr. Spalding's law firm not only aided in the development of a number of textile mills and other industries in the state but it took a prominent part in the development of Atlanta as a railroad center.

In addition to Hughes Spalding, he is survived by another son, Jack J. Spalding Jr., of New York, and a daughter, Mrs. William H. Schroder, of Atlanta; 11 grandchildren, Mrs. Jack Kalkhurst, Jack J. Spalding III, a member of The Constitution staff; Miss Eleanor Spalding, Hughes Spalding Jr., Bolling Spalding, Robert E. Spalding, Billups Phinizy Spalding, Spalding Schroder, John Schroder, Hughes Schroder and William H. Schroder Jr., and two great grandchildren, Betty and Mary Anne Kalkhurst.

SLAYER OF TAUNTON WINS EXONERATION

Clarence Wooten Cleared by Three-Man Court After Long Hearing.

THOMASTON, Ga., Dec. 8.—(AP)—Clarence Wooten, pleading justifiable homicide in protection of his home, was exonerated by a three-man justice court today in the fatal shooting of youthful State Senator Dudley Taunton.

At the commitment hearing, the court acted after hearing testimony for three and a half hours. The 28-year-old legislator died in a Butler hospital several hours after receiving a shotgun wound in his stomach at Wooten's fishing camp in Upson county last Saturday. Sheriff C. G. Meeks said Wooten claimed self-defense and

FRANCO MASSES ARMY FOR GREAT OFFENSIVE

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish
Frontier, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco tonight sealed the Insurgent frontier from the Bay of Biscay to Andorra and massed more than 10,000 Italian troops across the Pyrenees for a new big-scale offensive against the Loyalists.

The spearhead of Franco's troop movements appeared to be pointed at Barcelona, capital of Loyalist Spain on the Mediterranean east coast. Loyalist leaders there said they anticipated a major blow.

declared he had had previous trouble with Taunton. The sheriff asserted Taunton told him he was unarmed and that Wooten shot him without cause.

Taunton, former Taylor county representative in the legislature, was elected to the senate from the twenty-third district recently. Another election to fill his position will be held December 23.

CLAYTON ELECTION MAY BE SET TODAY

Five Fined and Given Suspended Sentences in 'Clean-up' of County.

JONESBORO, Ga., Dec. 8.—Five persons were fined and drew suspended prison sentences today as county commissioners planned to meet here tomorrow to set the date for an election to fill the term of ousted Sheriff E. L. Adamson in a drive against alleged vicious conditions in Clayton county.

Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain superior court circuit, Solicitor General Roy C. Leathers, Adamson and members of the county commission held a three-hour secret conference, but none would comment on what was discussed.

Commissioners apparently, however, planned to call the election at the meeting scheduled today for that purpose. No announcement to the contrary was forthcoming.

The five sentenced include: Nick Nichols, Villa Venice, illegal liquor dealings, $50 fine, and 12 months' suspended sentence.

Mrs. Mae Griffith and Eddie Jones, Club Lido, $150 fine each, and 12 months' suspended sentence each.

Roy Allen, Spring Lake, $125, and nine months' suspended.

Judge Davis said he would complete records in the cases of Mrs. W. M. Lavender, arrested in a raid on an alleged lottery check-up headquarters; Mrs. Jean Cobb, of Rose Garden court, and Roy Stegal, Log Cabin, Saturday.

PUREBRED STOCK GAINS. NEWNAN, Ga., Dec. 8.—Progress is reported in the Newnan Kiwanis Club's campaign for more purebred farm animals in Coweta county. N. V. Davis, county agent, states that two years ago the club obtained 15 purebred sows for as many Four-H Club boys. Today there are 125 such animals in the county owned by Four-H members.

Mental Halitosis Afflicts World, Rotarians Told

Special to The Constitution.

ROME, Ga., Dec. 8.—"Many persons are afflicted with mental halitosis, but their best friends can't tell them," Dr. Newdigate M. Owensby, Atlanta neurologist and psychiatrist, told members of the Rome Rotary Club her today at the keely luncheon-meeting.

"The reason their friends can't tell them is because they, too, are similarly affected and fail to recognize the afflictions," explained Dr. Owensby, speaking on what he termed "the jittery, jitterbug age."

Tracing the psychological factors involved in recent world and national events and their consequent effect on "Mr. and Mrs. Average Human Being," Dr. Owensby said:

"Events today follow each other with unparalleled rapidity. They bring about changes that are so kaleidoscopic that the world resembles a motion picture. One is conscious only of the continuity of events and does not see the changing of individual pictures."

Mould of Pessimism. "All things fall before this whirlwind machine of change—finance, farming, business, industry, law, medicine, religion, customs, society, governments, nations and, of course, individuals."

"Unless a person keeps mentally fit and can make constant readjustments to the new order of things, he is soon drawn into the shadows of business, professional or social bankruptcy. In a word—maladjustments."

"These are the persons who are alarmingly positive the world is rapidly skidding into hell. Their perspective is covered with a light green mould of pessimism. They scurry around joining various clubs and get nowhere fast. They chatter much about their neighbors—yet know little or nothing about their own loved ones."

"During prohibition days, they drank wet and voted dry. Today they still believe only crazy persons visit a psychiatrist."

Physic Epidemics.

"Any popular or successful person falls under the ban of their minute criticism. With no actual knowledge of how to run the government, they beat loudly upon their chests and proclaim their opinions as to how it should be done. Recently, an attempt to administer an old-fashioned household purge to a few individuals started an epidemic that caused a large number of persons to become allergic to the New Deal."

The most important events of today are psychic events, Dr. Owensby continued, and, in many cases, psychic epidemics.

"The real rulers of Italy and Germany, those individuals who dictate to the dictators—and there are such persons—are aware of the tremendous power of psychic influences. By promulgating psychic epidemics, they have regained most of the territories lost in the World War."

"Unless other nations immediately begin to combat these influences, the entire world stands to be dominated by totalitarian powers."

Duce Afraid of Cat.

Dr. Owensby took a crack at Mussolini by saying:

"Mussolini bellows like a bull and advertises himself to be a hairy brute. His pictures try to convey this impression. As a matter of psychological and actual fact, however, he is genuinely afraid of a house cat. He can't bear a cat in the same room with him."

"Mussolini reminds one of Ferdinand the Bull, who bellowed and became savage only when stung by a bumble-bee."

"Psychologically, this is Mussolini's defense mechanism at work. The same sort of mental working can be seen close at hand in the outwardly 'hardboiled' person—with a heart of gold under his tough exterior, or the person who boasts of his charity—when it actually pains him to donate a nickel, or the woman who continually boasts of her love for her husband—to cover up the fact she despises him and he bores her bow-legged."

"Physiologically, we all advertise ourselves to be the opposite of our real self. So beware and wary of the person who lays it on too thick. The chances are he is posing as a saint, when he is actually a devil. Or would be, if not for his inhibitions."

Bishop Charles C. Seecman, of ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 9, 1938.

LET US CO-OPERATE

Solution of Atlanta's traffic problem can only be achieved through the making of concessions by every individual and interest concerned. Major General George Van Horn Moseley, chairman of the Citizens Traffic Safety Committee, was entirely right in his statement, published Thursday morning, when he said chief blame for the wretched traffic conditions in this city must be laid to the selfishness of her citizens. The general might well have added discourtesy as a cause. For selfishness involves, always, discourtesy and disregard for others. When such disregard brings unnecessary suffering and death, as in traffic accidents, selfishness and discourtesy become criminality.

The new speed limit of 25 miles per hour has been passed by city council and signed by Mayor Hartsfield. The police of the city will endeavor, within bounds of reason, to enforce this ordinance. It is, however, basically a rule which can only be effective if self-enforced by every automobile driver who uses the city streets.

The sacrifice involved on each individual is not much. Careful observance of the 25-mile limit, would not mean more than two or three minutes' difference in the moment of arrival at the average destination.

Obedience to such a law does not, therefore, call for so much unselfishness. It is worth trying for long enough to evaluate results in saving of life and reduction in accidents. Every Atlantian who drives any sort of a motor vehicle should do his part toward solution of the problem by carefully obeying every traffic rule, including the new limitation on speed.

If such drastic curtailment of speed should, after fair trial, prove to be ineffective, then and then only will it be time to consider a less stringent rule.

Businessmen have, in some instances in the past, stood in the way of traffic improvement by their selfish refusal to allow non-parking areas in the vicinity of their places of business. Not only is such an attitude selfish, but it is exceedingly short sighted. A dozen cars parked at the curb in front of any business establishment will drive away twenty times the patronage that is induced to come because of the parking privilege. For every motorist who enters such a store, or other establishment, because he has been one of the few fortunate ones who found parking space nearby, 20 others have traded elsewhere because of their inability to park.

Unselfish co-operation in enforcement of non-parking regulations, wherever needed in the downtown area, will pay big dividends to any business establishment with sufficient vision to look ahead for a week or two. Dividends accruing from greater ease of approach and from public appreciation of co-operation toward the solution of the traffic puzzle.

While citizens and business houses thus demonstrate their willingness to co-operate, it is up to city council and its police committee to enact all needed rules as to one-way streets, non-turning intersections, non-parking areas and proper "lane" driving, so this city may gain a reputation for safe, courteous and smooth flow of traffic.

Whatever such regulations are approved, however, must be decided upon with the welfare of the entire city and its visitors as the sole objective. There must be no favoritism, no submission to "pressure" and, above all else, no playing of "politics" within the council chamber.

PEACE IS A STATE OF MIND

Joachim von Ribbentrop, foreign minister of Germany, and the French government have signed a new agreement pledging "no more war" between the two countries and providing that disputes as to boundaries in the future shall be settled by arbitration.

A few years ago consummation of such a treaty between those two nations would have been cause for unrestrained rejoicing all over the world. Today, however, the news is received only with skepticism, the world hears the report of the signing with a tragic snigger and an unconvinced shrug of the shoulder.

For the world knows that the treaty was not, actually, made between the peoples of the two nations. It is a treaty between Hitler and the Nazi clique which holds all power in Germany, and Premier Daladier of France. A change of government in France could easily vitiate the pact from that side, while the German pledge is recognized as worth no more than any such promise is worth from a country which keeps its word only if convenient and which regards "peace" merely as a weapon for the furtherance of its own ends.

The world has learned, long ago, the worthlessness of Nazi pledges. It has learned that honor and justice are only observed by the German government if they pay dividends in greater power and further aggrandizement. If they stand in the way of Nazi ambitions, Nazi treaties become nothing but "scraps of paper."

The world has learned, in recent years, that the so-called Treaty of Versailles was, in effect, little more than an extension of armistice. Born of war-inspired hatred it was unjust, cruel and unwise. The troubles and perplexities, the threats and horrors of these latter years are but the inevitable crop of the dragon's teeth sowed two decades ago.

Peace is, after all, a state of mind. When the world is wracked by fear of war, when bluff and threat crucify the weak that the strong may gain, it is absurd to call the mere silence of portentous guns, the idleness of waiting bombers, by the name of peace.

Until honor is restored to the intercourse of nations, until treaties are respected to the full, until the gripping fear of war is lifted from the hearts of all the peoples, there can be no true peace.

JACK J. SPALDING

The death of Jack Spalding takes out of contemporary Atlanta life a figure which focused, probably, stronger love and deeper admiration from more citizens than any other. He was a link with Atlanta of the past and a reassurance for the Atlanta of the future. He inspired pride in the hearts of those privileged to know him, and offered an inspiration to youth, aspiring to serve its people.

He was not a native of Georgia, having been born in Kentucky in August, 1856. He moved here as a young man, an unknown lawyer struggling for a place in a profession he was destined to ornament throughout a long life. He was, as a youngster at the bar, a contemporary of Woodrow Wilson and others who went on, from their Atlanta origins, to fame.

It was largely through the influence of the late Henry W. Grady, then editor of The Constitution, that the young Spalding got his start on a career which was to carry him far. He had been named administrator in a bankruptcy case and achieved the almost unprecedented record of paying off every creditor in full. This attracted Grady's attention and the editor's comment in turn brought the spotlight of public and professional notice upon the young lawyer.

From that start he went on to great achievements in the law. As he progressed his interests broadened and his name can be found in the former directorates of numbers of successful industrial undertakings. He was counsel for the Cotton States and International Exposition in Atlanta in 1895. He served as president of the Georgia Industrial Association and was secretary, treasurer and a director of the first hydroelectric plant operated in north Georgia, the Atlanta Water and Electric Power Company.

He was an enthusiastic member of the Atlanta Historical Society and, until several years ago, was a director of the First National Bank. He was a staunch Democrat, always interested in party affairs and, in 1888 and 1890 was a delegate to the national conventions. He was on the Fulton County Board of Commissioners from 1895 to 1899.

Mr. Spalding was one of the lay leaders of the Catholic church in the south and was honored for his services to that church throughout the nation. In 1927 he was decorated with the order of the Knights of St. Gregory by Pope Benedict, received the Laetare medal from the University of Notre Dame, for his services to the church, in 1928, and in 1931, was made a Knight of Malta.

For the greater part of his professional career he was the law partner of the late Alex C. King, who became judge of the United States circuit court. Their partnership lasted from 1885 until Judge King's death in 1926.

At the time of his death, Mr. Spalding was a member of the law firm of Spalding, Sibley, Troutman and Brock, but had not been active in recent months on account of ill health.

He was, in his profession, in politics, in his church and in his community one of those rare stalwarts who contribute so greatly to the distinction of an age.

In the blood: Ten minutes after an Ontario big winner in an Irish sweep had renounced gambling for all time, he bought a farm.

No list of remembrances for the growing son would be complete without an electric train suitable for a man of 40.

A western court holds a wife's dieting is no valid reason for divorce. A man of honor will stick by her through thick and fashionably thin.

Beyond a rumored willingness of George of England to recognize the long-lost Windsor, there is little new to report on British foreign policy.

Though it hasn't a tail by which to hang from the branches, we imagine Darwin could have woven the jitterbug into his theory somehow.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

F. D. R. HEADACHE FORESEEN WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—Appointing patronage has been generally regarded as one of the lighter White House duties, yet it is sure to give the President a severe headache this winter. The places he has to fill are numerous and important. The senate which must confirm his choices is irritable and newly encouraged to rebellion. And the kind of choice he is likely to make will, in many instances, arouse the maximum opposition.

Finding good men for big jobs is hard enough. For example, there's a good chance that Dean Charles Clark, of the Yale Law School, will accept a seat on the circuit court of appeals in the New York district. Dean Clark is young, brilliant, aggressively liberal, a former court plan supporter—in fact, a man precisely to the President's taste. But a strong movement is already on foot to get Clark's post for Chairman William O. Douglas, of the SEC, if Clark leaves it vacant.

Should Douglas' friends harrass the conservatives of the Yale corporation and persuade Douglas to leave the government, the President will be deprived of one of his best lieutenants. Add the fact that SEC Commissioner Jerome Frank is also likely to be appointed to the circuit court of appeals in the District of Columbia, and it is clear that the President may have to rebuild the SEC almost from the bottom up.

TROUBLES AHEAD The search for acceptable appointees will be as nothing, however, compared to persuading the senate of their acceptability. There should not be much trouble, to be sure, when and if the President sends Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson's name to the Hill for the attorney generalship. Jackson's enemies looked for sticks to beat him with (and found very few) when he was made solicitor general.

As for the senate, it is wholly wrong to expect the President's reappointment of Donald W. Smith to the National Labor Relations Board. Smith is one of the most aggressive members of this troubled and much denounced agency. He is regarded as a CIO man, and his confirmation will be opposed by the AFL. All the conservatively inclined senators, anxious to take a whack at the board without seeming to attack labor, will surely yield to the AFL's temptations. Indeed, there's an excellent chance that Smith won't be confirmed.

Then Senators Carter Glass and Harry F. Byrd—a formidable team—are infuriated by a presidential appointment to a Virginia judgeship and have sworn to defeat it. If senatorial courtesy prevails, they should succeed. And the report is that, in sounding out senate sentiment on a good place for Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, the President has already met with violent opposition. As for Harry L. Hopkins, if the President merely gives him the Commerce Department, the reaction should be mild. But if there is intimation that Hopkins will also have a big hand in the national defense program, the senate chamber ought to resemble a glass of seidlitz powders.

CARDOZO'S SEAT Finally, there is the biggest problem of all—finding a successor to Justice Cardozo. Of course, if the President chooses Felix Frankfurter, as he is most likely to do, the senate is likely to approve as heartily as the public. A handful of narrow extremists may cavil at it. But Frankfurter's fine mind, long public service and splendid abilities appeal equally to wise conservatives and wise liberals.

Indeed, the mere existence of so outstanding a candidate puts the President in something of a dilemma if he yields to his political inclinations. Should his fondness for a smart political trick prevail, a westerner will be his candidate. If the westerner is such a man as Governor Murphy, or Senator Lewis Schellenbach, of Washington, there will be senatorial explosions. If he is a milder fellow, like Judge Harold M. Stephens, of the district circuit court, or former Senator James P. Pope, of Idaho, there will merely be a sigh of disgust that the President should have taken second best for political reasons.

Of course, there is the possibility that Justice Brandeis' resignation may create a second supreme court vacancy. As your correspondent writes the first to retire, it seems wise to add here, as a postscript, that the story was not inspired, did not emanate from the New Deal left wing, and was not written with the intention of "putting pressure" on the justice. Your correspondents, like the members of the New Deal left wing, have a deep and reverent admiration for Louis Dembitz Brandeis. They merely sought to record a choice offered to him by the plight of his race, to alleviate which would be the only reason for his leaving the court. And whether he decides to stay on the court or leave it, they will be sure that Brandeis has done right.

More About Debutantes.

Westbrook Pegler, in his "Fair Enough" column of Wednesday last, was bitingly satirical about New York debutantes. It isn't necessary to retell the indictment he penned against the little gals who find their "society" in the saloons of Broadway and the Upper Fifties of New York.

However, in reading that vastly entertaining column, that day, the thought came to me that such descriptions merely emphasize, once again, the obvious truth that New York is neither America nor fairly representative of this country. And I, for one, am eternally grateful that this is true.

There may be, in widely scattered spots, a debutante or two in other parts of the nation who try to copy the ridiculous precedent of costly debut parties and snobbish insistence upon a falsely glamorous "caste" system. But they must be fearfully rare.

I can assure Mr. Pegler that real American girls today, elsewhere than in New York, have long ago shed such fantastic mid-Victorianism.

The Real Young Womanhood.

Personally it has been my good fortune, in recent weeks, to come into contact with mass examples of American young womanhood and girlhood, in Atlanta, which are truly representative of the spirit of this country as it is today.

Had the privilege of lunching, not so long ago, with the girls of Agnes Scott College, for instance. Heard their dean, a young woman herself, talk on certain practices and customs and conditions on that campus and got, thereby, quite an insight into the manners of life and of thought among those girls.

No one can argue that Agnes Scott is not representative of the better types of American girls. While President McCain would resent it if I said it was an expensive school for dad to send his daughter, at the same time it is by no means the place for a girl without some financial resource in the family.

But the atmosphere of that campus is distinctly not healthy for social aspiration fungi. For the girls are serious about their work, about the curriculum and the responsibilities they assume when they become Agnes Scott girls.

In short, I am sure that a girl who absorbs the real Agnes Scott spirit will go out from the school ready to make a real contribution to finer American life, whether it is as head of her own household, as good wife and intelligent mother, or in more public roles.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Daladier NEW-YORK, Dec. 8.—And Fascism 8.—Many Americans call themselves progressives profess to be shocked by M. Daladier's use of his powers in France and perceive there the beginning of a Fascist regime. The politics of France are so very complex that not even Frenchmen know what it is all about, but from this distance it does appear that, under the pretext of a national emergency, one man acquired more authority than a democracy may prudently confer.

Had he used this power to promote Communism those Americans who claim to be merely progressives, not Communists, but cannot be induced to say one word against "the greatest experiment for human betterment ever made," would have been pleased. For, obviously, they could not be displeased to see France also undertake the same great experiment, nor could they pretend to be displeased if the Russian experiment should one day be tried here.

But when a trusted man uses his powers to try the wrong kind of experiment that is, indeed, alarming and should be a lesson to us all, including those who euphemistically call themselves merely progressives.

Do Not Foot It The developments in France would seem to rebuke the enthusiastic faith expressed by such progressives in proposals to enlarge and solidify the powers of the American executive. Other Americans who have opposed such proposals have been intemperately denounced as Fascists, but the arguments do not foot up.

No Fascist believes in parliament or in independent courts, and no Fascist in democracy would want to hand over to any individual all the power and responsibility of government and abolish the function of congress by electing picked men pledged to do the bidding of the leader's messengers.

But possibly it will be said that it is all right to confer great powers if you know your man; that it is all right to do it here but not in France, and that dictatorship is not wrong of itself if it is an anticlericalist. That does not seem to be the position of those so-called progressives who are otherwise known as "fellow-travelers of the Communists."

Bullpen Exercises There never have been any proletarian Roosevelt, nor have any of the Roosevelt ever gone to the public schools, and it was John L. Lewis himself who once accused the president of having cursed impartially both labor and his enemies. This Mr. Lewis interpreted as a rather special curse on labor.

The showdown between labor leaders—not labor—and public authority in this country, have been bullpen exercises to date, and with luck the nation as a whole will never have to engage in varsity competition of this kind. But there is no assurance in Mr. Roosevelt's record that, in the event of such a showdown, he would use the authority which the fellow-travelers have bespoken for him in a manner to gratify those who admire the Soviet experiment.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

LOUIE OF HAYGOOD

Dr. Elam F. Dempsey is writing the authorized biography of Bishop Atticus G. Haygood, and by "authorized" I mean with the authority of the family. At the same time he has the authority and approval of the Methodist church, as indicated in letters from Bishops Hughes and Deane. He has been given a sabbatical year which he will devote to this important task.

Dr. Dempsey is well qualified for this great undertaking. He wrote the life of Bishop James E. Dickey, and "Wisdom of Bishop Candler," two of the most highly valued volumes in the Christian literature of the south. He has done extensive writing for newspapers and magazines throughout the 40 years since his graduation from Emory University and Vanderbilt University. With his literary gifts, Dr. Dempsey has the wide experience of a pastor and denominational leader. He has been closely associated with Wesleyan Christian Advocate for a number of years and in the councils of Methodism for four decades. It is, therefore, reassuring that a man of Dr. Dempsey's ability will write the authorized biography of Bishop Haygood.

Dr. Dempsey has moved to Atlanta and will do his work in the Emory University library, where a special room has been set apart for him. He will have access to all the source material at Emory, and he will appreciate any material that friends throughout the state may have on Bishop Haygood. Address Dr. Dempsey at the Emory library.

Bishop Haygood was one of the towering personalities of Methodism, not only in the south, but throughout the entire nation. Henry Grady said "I lighted my torch from Haygood's flames." Bishop Cranston said "Haygood was the Moses of the New South, leading them out to the Promised Land of better things." As the first agent of the John F. Slater fund, Bishop Haygood brought to Southern Christian education the large gifts of George Seney. He wrote many notable books, including "Our Children" and "Our Brother in Black." He was one of the great preachers America has produced. I have heard many of our older men and women say that he was the greatest preacher they ever heard.

We all shall look forward with high expectation to the forthcoming biography of this great man by Dr. Dempsey, giving him all possible co-operation in his great undertaking.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

COL. JACK SPALDING I kept thinking that one day when he got back from Miami I'd go out and ask him to talk some more. I wanted to try and get down on paper some of the wisdom of the man; some of the strength of his mind.

But, yesterday Colonel Jack Spalding died down in Miami. He was a man of a great man. I have seen and met and talked with men who passed as great men. Few of them were. But he was a great man.

He reminded me, somehow, of Andrew Jackson. I even thought he had some of Old Hickory's look—the look of his eyes you could see in the old portraits of the tall Tennessean. Certainly, this Atlantian had some of the hickory in him, body and mind, that was in "Old Hickory."

The stories and the editorials will tell of the public life of the man. There wasn't much in the building of Atlanta, during the many years he was here, that he didn't help start or complete. They can't tell, really, of the man himself and of his thinking.

It was the late Henry Grady who really got him started in Atlanta. He was here, a struggling young lawyer. He was given what today would be called a bankruptcy case. He managed it so successfully all the creditors were paid in full. It was so unusual Henry Grady wrote of it. More people came to the young lawyer.

He was a lawyer and a legal scholar. He knew what was in the big, thick records and the reports. They would all fall into the grooves of his mind and few were the times that Jack Spalding argued unsuccessfully before a jury or a judge.

HIS MIND WAS YOUNG His mind never grew old. There was never about him any sighing for the old days because of any lack of comprehending the present.

Late last summer it was my pleasure to have an opportunity of talking with him. He was a Democrat, a New Dealer, a supporter of the Roosevelt policies of social legislation and of humanity. He was a Jeffersonian, a Jacksonian and he combined the best of the two.

Those who opposed the Democratic administration policy of taxing wealth to finance social experiments were to his mind making an age-old mistake.

His memory retained the days of slavery, of the days which followed. He had heard and he had read. "They remind me," he said, "of those who opposed progress in other years. You know," he said, "when the Constitution of the United States was written, Jefferson attempted to have written into it the gradual abolition of slavery. You know that twice in the immediate years before the War Between the States there were efforts to abolish slavery and repay the owners of slaves."

"Each time," he said, "the slave owners who did not think it through, went to Washington, figuratively clutching all they had to their breasts, and saying, 'No, this is mine. The Constitution guarantees it to me. You can't take it from me. It's mine! Mine!'"

He reflected a bit, and said, "It was theirs. The Constitution did guarantee it. Yet they lost it all through a stubbornness and a selfishness which refused to admit what was happening in the world; through an inability to see the trends and the march of social and political thinking. There are some today," he said, "who refuse to see and who clutch all they have, even when it is too much, and say, 'This is mine. The Constitution guarantees it to me.'"

His mind was young, ahead of the field. He saw it all, the whole great canvas and never just one corner of it, or one section. He had watched the years march on from before the War Between the States until this year of 1938 and almost to 1939. Listening to him was listening to wisdom.

ONE FEATURE DISTURBED HIM One feature of the New Deal disturbed him. Deal disturbed him. He saw no one, exactly, to blame. He saw too many people who had lost their sense of independence, their morale, their spiritual stamina in the business of relief.

He wondered what was to happen to the great army of professional relievers who had come into being and who were making of relief a profession.

He saw some trends in the American scene which he did not like. He saw some things which gave him concern and which will have to be solved. I remember he said: "I will not have to worry about that. The time is yet ahead. You may. My grandchildren may."

He lived a well-rounded life. He was student, philosopher and scholar, and yet he liked the splashes of color across the American scene. He liked the races. He had seen almost 50 Kentucky Derbies. Only Colonel Matt Winn, who has seen them all, had seen more than he. He was not a cloistered mind or person. He and the late Clark Howell were much alike in spirit. They were great friends. Of him Clark Howell said, "He has the longest mind I know."

They were two great men. Many called "great" beside them were pygmies.

The Most Efficient Machine Is a Useless Mass of Steel to One Ignorant of Machines

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Some years ago a well-to-do American citizen—call him Mr. Smith—went down to Mexico, as many Mexicans have moved into this country, and bought several thousand acres of land.

He paid very little, for the land was unused and apparently worthless. There wasn't a building on it, nor a fence post, nor a tree, nor any green thing whatever. It was barren.

Mr. Smith made the land valuable. He employed native labor to dig canals for irrigation; dug scores of wells; built a house for himself and scores of houses for his workers; imported a cotton gin and other machinery.

Given sufficient water, the worthless land produced good crops of cotton. Mr. Smith made money and plowed back his profits till he had an investment of half a million dollars. It was a fine estate, but it took capital and 20 years of efficient management to make it so.

Mr. Smith's hired workers were apparently content. At any rate, they received regular wages and lived in comfort and security. Two years ago, President Cardenas, who is really a dictator and a disciple of Trotsky, decided to "expropriate the land for the peasants." He simply took the property, without giving anything in return, and divided it among Mr. Smith's former employees.

When sentimental Americans heard the story, they said: "Well, why not? The rich Mr. Smith had no right to grab Mexico's land. Dividing it among the poor landless peasants was fair and just."

But this view takes no account of the facts. There is no scarcity of land in Mexico, but far more than enough for all. The picture of a big-hearted liberator forcing a usurper to return the land to the disposed poor is wholly false. Cardenas could give every peasant such land as Mr. Smith bought.

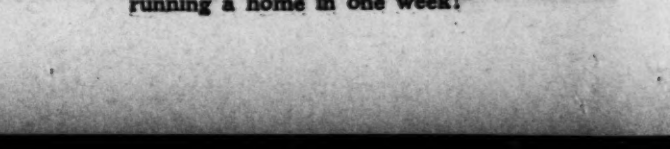

But he hasn't seized and divided a single acre of such land. It isn't worth stealing. What he wanted for his people was the improvements—the money and skill and 20 years of effort Mr. Smith had invested. And that is the story of every "expropriated" estate in Mexico. Why begin at the bottom and labor to produce wealth when you can find a "legal" way to steal it?

Are the peasants prospering? No; without guidance they make a mess of things. They flood their fields and waste the precious water; they allow the canals to fill with silt; they neglect their crops. Production is cut in half. Mr. Smith's estate is no longer a show place.

Communizing Mexico at the expense of Americans has served only to hasten the nation's ruin. Cardenas can steal property, but he can't steal the brains to manage it.

Comedies, Dramas and Westerns Are Attractions for Next Week

'Dr. Kildare' at Grand, 'Brother Rat' at Fox, 'Heart of North' at Capitol, 'Can't Take It With You' Rialto Holdover.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

A former screen favorite in a successful comeback, a Broadway star in a successful screen debut and a six-year-old little girl in a picture-stealing role will be seen in the three new films opening at the downtown theaters today.

Lew Ayres is "Young Dr. Kildare" playing with Lionel Barrymore at the Grand. He completes the comeback trail begun in "Holiday," Eddie Albert, who stole the Broadway production of "Brother Rat," outshines Wayne Morris and the others at the Fox theater. And little Janet Chapman goes chasing after the Canadian mounted police in "Heart of the North" at the Capitol.

Lionel Barrymore is still telling the income tax collector Uncle Sam can't pay the President with his $75 because he doesn't believe in income tax. "Grandpa" Barrymore is doing a good job of making people happy at the Rialto. The Rhodes is playing "The Young in Heart" in which Paulette Goddard, who may be Scarlett O'Hara, makes her talking debut on the screen.

BROTHER RAT AT FOX THEATRE

"Brother Rat," the gay comedy of life in a military school, which ran on a Broadway stage for 18 consecutive months and had three road companies successfully touring the country at the same time, opens today on the Fox theater screen.

It is a Warner Brothers production and stars Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane. A considerable portion of the picture was made on the grounds of the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Va., and the entire cadet corps of that famous and historic school 700 strong, took part.

V. M. I. has long been known as the "West Point of the South." It was the training place of that great Confederate general, "Stonewall" Jackson. The institute authorities gave complete co-operation to the producers and to Director William Keighley. The drills and sports and dormitory life of the cadets are shown in all their picturesque detail. A "Rat" in V. M. I. parlance is a freshman, or "plebe" as they are called at West Point. Those who go through the four years training together are called "Brother Rats." Hence the title. They are loyal to each other through thick and thin. Eddie Albert has been recruited from the New York stage play for the film version.

YOUNG DOCTOR KILDARE OPENS AT LOEW'S

Based on the fiction character created by magazine writer, Max Brand, "Young Doctor Kildare" opens at Loew's today. Lew Ayres, who started a much-discussed comeback in "Holiday" and "Rich Man, Poor Girl," is starred with veteran Lionel Barrymore, whose last picture was "You Can't Take It With You."

Principal supporting roles are played by Lynne Carver, Nat Pendleton, Samuel S. Hinds, and Jo Ann Sayers, who stepped from the campus of the University of Washington to make her screen debut in this new M-G-M film. James Kildare, played by Lew Ayres, is a young medical graduate who decides that he has a bigger mission in life than taking over his father's country practice and marrying his childhood sweetheart, Lynne Carver. He takes an internship in a New York City hospital and meets a hard bitten old diagnostician, Lionel Barrymore, whose displeasure he incurs. The young medic's first ambulance call is to a saloon where a man has collapsed. While there he received another call to go to a rooming house where a girl has attempted suicide by gas. Leaving his orderly, Nat Pendleton, to administer oxygen and rush the man to the hospital, Ayres goes to the rooming house and revives the girl. When the man dies, and the girl attempts suicide turns out to be a millionaire's daughter, the young doctor's career is jeopardized.

HEART OF THE NORTH FILM IN TECHNICOLOR

High adventure along one of the world's last frontiers is depicted in "Heart of the North," the Warner Brothers picture in technicolor of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police which comes tops the Pulitzer prize play by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, was written for the screen by Robert Riskin, collaborating again with Capra in a smash hit. These Columbia filmmakers have been lauded time and time again for their "It Happened One Night," "Lady for a Day" and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town." In "You Can't Take It With You," they have scored again.

Heading the cast are Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, Mascha Auer, Ann Miller and numerous others.

The film deals with the lovable, if screwy, Vanderhof family, which believes in doing whatever it wants whenever it wants to. This uninhibited group reveals a heart-warming attitude toward life in a merry melange of comedy, flavored with romance and tinged with pathos.

"THE YOUNG IN HEART" OPENS AT THE RHODES

Janet Gaynor, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Paulette Goddard star in "The Young in Heart," which begins a week's engagement at the Rhodes theater today.

Roland "Topper" Young, Billie Burke, Henry Stephenson, Richard Carlson, romantic newcomer from the New York stage, and Minnie Dupree head the imposing supporting cast of the screen version of the Saturday Evening Post serial, "The Gay Bandit."

"The Young in Heart" is the delightful story of the Carletons, a family of fascinating phonies, who live by their charm and on anyone's money, and have been Another PWA Installment Received for Power and Navigation Work.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(P)—The Public Works Administration paid another installment today on its commitment of $34,000,000 for the Santee-Cooper power and navigation project in South Carolina. The payment totaled $19,800,000 of which $10,890,000 was a loan and $8,910,000 a grant, bringing the grand total advanced by PWA to $30,300,000. PWA previous made loans of $5,775,000 and grants of $4,725,000. Officials said the new payment was in line with the administration's policy of making its share of the project funds available as work.

The entire project will cost $37,500,000, with PWA making outright grants of $15,300,000 and loans of $18,700,000. The remainder of the cost is to be supplied by the Works Progress Administration through grants for labor.

SELF-DEFENSE PLEA HINTED FOR SNYDER

Broadway Figure Goes on Trial for Shooting Etting Friend.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—(P)—Self-defense figured prominently today in the selection of jurors to try "Colonel" Martin Snyder, 44-year-old Broadway and Chicago Rialto figure, charged with kidnapping and assault to commit murder.

Snyder is accused of kidnapping Myrl Alderman, 30, taking him to the presence of Snyder's former wife, Ruth Etting, radio singer, and his daughter, Edith Snyder, and shooting him. Alderman formerly was an accompanist for Miss Etting, who divorced Snyder in Chicago a year ago. Miss Snyder, daughter of a previous marriage, is Miss Etting's secretary.

At the time of the shooting, Miss Etting said she and Alderman were secretly married last summer in Mexico. She later denied this.

HIT-RUN DRIVING CHARGED TO DODD

Former Envoy to Germany Accused of Injuring 4-Year-Old Girl.

HANOVER COURTHOUSE, Va., Dec. 8.—(P)—William E. Dodd Sr., former ambassador to Germany, furnished bond tonight of $2,000, returnable at Ashland, Va., December 17, on a charge of hit-and-run driving in connection with an injury to a negro child. State Trooper Carlisle Johnson, who swore out the warrant, served it at Dodd's home at Round Hill, Va., late today and the former diplomat was driven back here tonight in his own car by Trooper E. P. Landers. The officers said they were instructed by Colonel M. S. Battle Jr., director of the state division of motor vehicles, to hold Dodd's car pending disposition of the case. Dodd is charged with failing to stop after his car struck and injured Gloria Grimes, four-year-old negro, near here Monday. Dodd, speaking by telephone from his home in northern Virginia, said he continued on his way because he thought the child had escaped injury. He said the girl ran directly into the path of his automobile as he was traveling about 45 miles an hour, and that he applied the brakes and swerved the car.

QUOTA ADVANTAGES OUTLINED BY BROWN

Thumbnail Summary of Benefits Issued as Growers Prepare to Vote.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 8.—Georgia farmers will vote Saturday on whether marketing quotas shall be applied to cotton and flue-cured tobacco for the 1939 season.

Director Walter S. Brown, of the Georgia agricultural extension service, has prepared a thumbnail summary of what the application of marketing quotas on these crops will mean to Georgia farmers. It follows:

1. Quotas provide a measure for adjusting supply to demand.
2. Quotas make cotton loans available.
3. Quotas serve to prevent further decline in cotton prices.
4. Quotas encourage more efficient production on fewer acres.
5. Quotas place no limitation on the sale of cotton produced on allotted acres.
6. Quotas protect co-operators by providing that non-co-operators will not participate in any payments under the agricultural conservation program.
7. Quotas provide that only co-operators will receive cotton parity payments.
8. Quotas provide that only co-operators will be eligible for loans on all cotton produced.
9. Quotas provide that non-co-operators will pay a penalty of 3 cents a pound on all cotton sold in excess of the marketing quota.

MRS. HAHN BURIED QUICKLY, QUIETLY

Circle of Mourners.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 8.—(P)—Anna Marie Hahn was buried today, quickly and quietly.

Only her attorneys, the wife of Ohio penitentiary's warden, and the matrons who attended the poison-slayer in her last hours were there as mourners; only one basket of flowers, anonymously sent, graced the unadorned grave of the woman who moaned the Lord's prayer as she was electrocuted last night for the murder of Jacob Wagner, 78.

The penitentiary chaplain, Father John Sullivan, performed the simple ritual at a downtown funeral parlor. Two dozen curious idlers gathered in the Catholic cemetery when the funeral procession of five automobiles drew up.

Permits Extradition of William Bailey, Wanted Here.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 8.—(P)—Governor A. Harry Moore's office announced today that he had granted the extradition to Georgia of William Bailey, wanted in Atlanta on three charges.

The offenses charged against him were the theft of a book of tickets to a Shrine's charity revue and a $2 thermometer, the theft of a $30 check, and drunken driving. Eugene Lora, extradition clerk in Governor Moore's office, explained that driving while intoxicated is an indictable offense in Georgia, making it extraditable under New Jersey procedure.

A Georgia officer was expected to start with him for Atlanta today.

WPA FUND TO LAST UNTIL MARCH FIRST

More Cash Needed for Period Up to July 1.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins indicated today that the $1,500,000,000 relief fund voted by Congress last June will suffice until March 1, after which he intends to seek a deficiency appropriation to cover the period up to July 1.

He told a press conference that he intends to make the present appropriation last through the full period of eight months, expiring March 1, as directed by Congress. He said that the size of the deficiency bill is undecided although President Roosevelt estimated last July that it would be $500,000,000.

Tracy Taking on Weight, Jealous of Clark Gable

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 8.—"I Take This Woman." . . . "I feel like Wally Beery in a tent," says Spencer Tracy, referring to his own size. Tracy, who is 5'10" tall, has just finished embracing Hedy Lamarr, and in a voice fraught with urgency, calls for a glass of cold water. "You have some, too?" he queries Hedy. But that beautiful, blonde, giggles and says, "No." . . . Spencer is gaining a little weight—which is a good thing, I tell him. But he doesn't agree. "How can a fat man compete with Gable?" he wants to know. What I say is—there can't be too much of Tracy.

Spencer sells me the Encino newspaper, published by his 13-year-old son. When the boy was asked when the issue was likely to appear, he answered, "January 8th—I hope." "It's a wonderful paper," boasts the boy's father. "All about the Tracys—particularly about the pictures of a certain Spencer Tracy. He printed my name in foot-length letters as the star of 'Test Pilot.' Somewhere at the bottom of the page, in quarter-inch type, was, 'Clark Gable and Myrna Loy are also in it.'"

"Ice Follies." . . . "Now you've been everything," says Jimmy Stewart, who is portraying the front part of a horse in this epic of the ice. Lew Ayres is the back part of the horse. In flesh-colored tights, silver and satin costume (very abbreviated), is the driver. The four legs of the steed and Joan's are all on skates. The "horse" cannot see. Joan cannot skate very well (neither can the horse, for that matter). And a nervous time is had by all. Miss Crawford is trembling so much that when she returns to her knitting that—in her own words—"The sweater is practically knitting itself!"

It is not all fun being a star—or, rather, having to skate—according to Joan. "At the end of the day, my feet are so numb, it takes hours before they belong to me again. But don't worry, I'm going to be a good skater—if it kills me." Which speech, ladies and gentlemen, is the worthy cornerstone of Miss Crawford's life.

"Love Affair." . . . Irene Dunne tells me she turned down two pictures (at a reported price of $150,000 each) to make this one for RKO-Radio and her good friend

Attractive Dirndl Dress

By Barbara Bell

As soft fullness, tiny waists, and a general effect of appealing femininity continue to be more and more smart, the dirndl continues to be a top-flight favorite! Here's an unusually good design for a charming dirndl that will fit beautifully into your winter plans! Wear it at home during the busy season of holiday preparation, and take it on week ends in the country.

The doll-waisted effect is emphasized by a beaming ribbon sash and shirring at the top of the skirt—shirring is also used at the top of the Victorian sleeves. For strictly home wear, make this dress of vivid cotton prints—calico, chintz or percale. For country daytimes or runabout, use challis or velveteen, omitting the shirred pocket and using a more formal braided rickrack.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1567-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material; 9 yards of braided 1-2-3 yards of ribbon for sash.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Stepmother Has Difficult Problem

By Caroline Chatfield

Dear Miss Chatfield: Of course nobody ever heard of a stepmother who didn't start out with the firm determination to make friends with her husband's children. Well, I'm no exception to the rule. I thought it would be an easy matter since my husband assured me that his children had no objection to his remarriage and were prepared to take me in. Since the first time we sat down to the dinner table together my life has been a long heartache. All with one accord, including my husband, talk about what a good housekeeper and cook number one was. They sigh for this dish or that until I am ready to scream and run out of the dining room. Same thing goes on about every detail of the home-life. I am haunted by a ghost. Even the family of the former wife comes in for a dig now and then, and reminds me that their daughter has been here before me. Please tell me what to do and how to do it.—Second wife.

Answer: For cruelty born of stupidity the experience you are having couldn't be topped. Any man with an ounce of tenderness toward his wife should know that a second wife spends her life trying to forget that another woman once stood in that closest of all relationships to her husband and that any comparison he might make would be painful—to say nothing of the bad taste he exhibits.

So I would suggest that you have the question out with him, tell him that his constant allusions to the former wife hurt you, that you actually dread to sit down to the meal table, knowing that either he or the children will drag out the ghost for your benefit. Of course he will say that he had no idea how you felt, that he wouldn't have wounded you, and that he will never offend again. Then is the time to tell him that you will count on him to call off the children and the in-laws too, which is no more than he should do.

There are insensitive people who blunder through life assuming that everybody has a hide as tough as theirs. They aren't mean—but they are none too bright and if you live with them you may expect to spend your life flinching for they are sure to step on the sensitive points.—Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: What would you think of a widower's taking an apartment house and renting it to lonely people who want companionship and don't know how to get it. My business requires most of my time but believe I could manage to carry on this self-paying philanthropy on the side.—J. K.

Answer: Frankly, I think that's a chimerical dream which would turn out to be a nightmare before you got through with it. There's dynamite, TNT and all sorts of potential trouble bound up in such a scheme. While your altruism does you credit, I'm afraid that it has run away with your practicality.—Caroline Chatfield.

Choosing Suit In Opening Bid

By Harold Sharpsteen.

This is the fourth of a series of articles covering the complete range of opening suit bids.

Opening bidder has five important factors to take into consideration in determining the normal choice between two biddable suits. Length of the suits. Rank of the suits. Strength of the suits. Principle of economy. Principle of safety.

LENGTH IS PREFERRED. With two biddable suits of unequal length, bid, as a rule, the longer first.

Evening Bags and Tantalizing Toiletries Suggest Loveliest of "Feminine" Gifts

By LILLIAN MAE.

Now is the season of colorful brilliance—parties and more parties. Styles have swung around to the feminine—the very feminine—extreme again: lace, flowers, fluttering chiffon handkerchiefs and hoopskirts.

This extreme wave of femininity makes it much easier for the Christmas shopper this year, for the shops are really brimming over with just the loveliest imaginable gifts!

No evening ensemble is "right" unless it has all the proper finishing touches. One of these finishing touches is the bag. And I've just seen some much lovelier than I had ever known evening bags could possibly be. There is one which caused me to just stand and gaze at the most beautiful shade of bright red velvet, envelope shape, containing compact, jeweled lipstick, perfume and comb—and it's satin-lined.

There are other colors than red, and other materials than velvet, but that particular one just "got me!" The bag may be had in brocade or satin, as well—and perhaps you'd like one of these two better. At any rate, I'll be very unhappy unless some Santa Claus presents me with the one in bright red velvet!

Some other heart-thrilling articles! Arrayed in a sunburst of glory, is a cologne in one of the newest French fragrances. It's gay, it's exciting and it carries an aura of the unexpected—a perfume which puts its user in the mood for dancing till dawn. The flacon of carved white plaster is so startling and so beautiful that owning it would indeed bring a sense of luxury and well being. It's a holiday gift you'd be proud to tuck in someone else's stocking and hope to find in yours.

An echo to the perfume and cologne is the new dusting powder—a frankly pampering influence—soft, fragrant, utterly feminine. You'll adore the big, fluffy lamb's-wool puff, in a white box, smart and trim—with sunburst effect on top.

I told you about the perfume of this fragrance when it was new. At that time, it was put up only in expensive bottles. Now, it is available in the same regal bottle and beautiful sunburst box, but in a small size, so that you can use between purchases it for yourself! Phone me for the names of these ultra-feminine articles if you want to make "her" extreme happy. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Sewing Room Should Be Attractive

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

"Ever since my doll dressing days, I've loved to sew," writes Evelyn A., "and I'm pretty good at it. I may be so bold. I make most of the family clothes. I've always dreamed of a really well equipped sewing room but so far I've had to be content with using makeshift corner of any room that could be spared. Now we've just added an addition to our house, and my husband has a den for his carpenter bench and I have a sewing room. Both of us are thrilled. "But all of a sudden I've got stage-fright because I want this room to look attractive and be useful and I'm not quite sure just how to achieve that. Can you help? I'll need some kind of a big cutting table but the room is really too small to have this out on the floor all the time. Besides I'd rather like to have this room as a sort of a little sitting room to use between sewing sprints and a big cutting table would rather spoil that effect. What would you suggest in the way of furnishing and decoration, keeping in mind that this must be first of all a utility room. I want it cheery and pleasant to work in."

The Answer. First off, why not inveigle your husband into building in a set of cabinets and shelves across one wall of the room. You know you can't have enough for sewing odds-ends. Then in one section of the room be sure to have plenty of electrical outlets of course (for lamps, iron and sewing machine).

How would the idea of pink walls and woodwork strike you? Yes, I mean a definite pink, though not too deep. Then curtains and slip covers of navy calais with a tiny white sprig in it finished with white rick-rack, perhaps. By all means have at least one comfortable chair here, preferably two if you expect to use it as a sitting room on "beaut" nights when your daughter wants the living room. And if you have room for a studio couch, what a good solution of the extra guest-room space! For the walls, collect botanical prints and frame them in white painted frames. For working, you know how much easier sewing—or rather the clean and neat floor is either bare or covered in linoleum. So have your floor plain, then add some flowered hooked rugs, scatter size, that can easily be swooped up out of the way when you're going to sew.

Of Interest to Women

Q. My seven-year-old son is destructive and deliberately breaks the toys we buy him. Can you suggest anything to correct the habit?

A. Try giving him things that he must make, such as simple building sets. Get him some simple tools, pieces of soft boards and some nails and ask him to make a box or play house. Spread papers thickly over the floor and let him paint. This often arouses the interest of destructive children, particularly if they are permitted to have their little friends help them.

Q. Has saccharin, used as a sweetening agent, any food value? A. It has no food value and is excreted almost unchanged.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp, and mail to the Woman's Editor, Washington Service Bureau of The Atlanta Constitution, 1021 Thirteenth street, N. W., Washington, D. C. For a personal reply, three of the most interesting answers will be printed here daily. Don't telephone; write as directed.

My Day: Do We Really Live In 'Land of the Free'?

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—As I listened to the speeches last night at the dinner given for the support of the Leon Blum Colony, which will assist some of the Jewish refugees to start life all over again, I could not help thinking how much all human beings like to fool themselves.

At William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, a kindly gentleman with a rightful pride in his achievements, told me of his son practicing law, and how he had been able to give him and his five sisters college educations when he himself had had to leave school and spend 20 years in the mines. Natural enough that he should feel that this is a grand country. He knows that some things are not just as we might wish, but nevertheless this is the land of the free. He told us this in his speech and that we can pat ourselves on the back that we are lucky enough to live here.

Almost every other speaker gave us the same kind of pat and made us feel that, as a whole, we were more virtuous and fortunate than any other country in the world. Of course, I concede this, and I feel for me it is true, for I have been free and fortunate all my life. While I listened, however, I could not help thinking of some of the letters which pass through my hands.

Are you free if you cannot vote, if you cannot be sure that the same justice will be meted out to you as to your neighbor; if you are expected to live on a lower level than your neighbor and to work for lower wages; if you are barred from certain places and from certain opportunities? It seems from my mail that there are people in this country who do not feel as I do about having personal freedom, even though they might agree that they are better off than they might be somewhere else.

I think of the little girl who wrote me not long ago: "Why do the other children call me names and laugh at my talk? I don't live in this country very long yet."

Are you free when you can't earn enough, no matter how hard you work, to feed and clothe and house your children properly? Are you free when your employer can turn you out of a company house and deny you work because you belong to a union?

There are lots and lots of things which make me wonder whether we ever look ourselves straight in the face and really mean what we say when we are busy patting ourselves on the back!

Somewhere, someone must have a quiet laugh, I think, if there is a place where real truth is dealt in!

One of my fellow columnists spoke out in no uncertain terms on the subject of the way young girls are being allowed to run from night club to night club. He is much concerned about the poor little rich girl, and this is rather a new subject for him to be concerned about. I want to give him a word of consolation—the few society youngsters he sees doing this in the big cities of our country are just a drop in the bucket. There are a few others, perhaps, in smaller places who may do the same type of thing in a different way for the sake of emulating someone they've read about, but the vast majority of little girls all over this nation have something much better to do most of the time.

Women Give True Ages Only When Applying for Pensions

By Ida Jean Kain.

It must have been some woman with a keen understanding of feminine nature who was responsible for the law enabling New York women to put down 21 plus on their registration blanks. This arrangement for evading the age question was passed along with the law giving women the right to vote and we have exercised the privilege so consistently that now the registration clerks automatically put down 21 plus. In fact, there seems to be a general feeling that the only time a woman is eager to put her age on record is when she is applying for a pension.

Pursuing this question of age and the woman right into the jury room, where the law insists on knowing the exact figures we find that women run true to form and that their first inclination, even there, is to fib a little. "It's an old habit for a woman to cut a few years from her age," says Frederick H. Cahoon, clerk of the New York division of jurors. "We have a lot of trouble with them. Some we find, have signed the applications—which must be sworn to—with 10 to 15 years cut off. Actually, hundreds of the women applicants misrepresent their age. Some are vague and say 'more than 21.' One said she was 38 and explained that she was born in 1892."

"So . . . it's on record that we fib about our age. Now, the question is, do we look the age we give? It is a woman's privilege to cut off a few years, provided she looks as young as she says she is. That is how the movie stars get away with it. There is no point in a star admitting she is 40 when she looks less than 30!"

But there is no use in saying you look younger when you actually look older than you are. Here are the telling points . . . Do you have a young walk and posture? If you take short, mincing steps, jerking the knees and pointing the toes out, then you are old. A smooth walk, with the body moved as a unit, legs swung from the hips, toes pointed straight ahead, and your body stretched as tall as possible, takes years off the appearance.

And then, is your waistline the same as it was when you were 25? Or has a roll settled between the waist and the hips? It's no use giving your age as younger when your waist is thick and stodgy. Excess weight pads your age and extreme thinness adds wrinkles. Your normal healthy weight is always the most flattering.

It is my candid opinion that no woman minds telling her age when she doesn't look it, and that the women who fib about their age usually look older than they actually are—or need to look. Any woman today can look a good five years younger than she is and many of them look 10 years younger. Do you?

Miss Fuller and Miss Wilby Receive Honors at Finch School

By Sally Forth.

FRIENDS of Atlanta girls enrolled at Stephens College in Missouri will be interested in hearing of the various sororities to which they have been pledged. The rushing period at Stephens closed last week, with 567 girls pledged to different sororities. The initiation ceremonies will take place after the Christmas vacation.

Charlotte Matthews, George McKenzie Dargan and Emmelyn Carter will be initiated into the Theta Tau Omega sorority. Dana Shadburn and Elnora Murrah are pledged to the Kappa Alpha Pi sorority.

Lucky thinks Sally that the Eta Epsilon Gamma sorority captured Mary Jo Brownlee and Barbara Ann Nelson for members and the Tri Phi bid was accepted by Mary Louise Bailey and Lucille Hartsfield.

News from other schools reveals honors bestowed upon Atlanta girls. At Finch School in New York, "Bungy" Fuller, who is a member of the junior class, has been placed on the dean's list in recognition of her high academic standing. "Bungy," by the way, arrives on December 18 to spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fuller, at their home on Brighton road.

Another Atlanta girl enrolled at Finch School is Alma Wilby, daughter of the Robert B. Wilbys, who received a similar honor to that conferred upon "Bungy" for her high scholastic standing as a member of the senior class.

WHEN Pauline Ware Neal chose the color scheme for the dining room of her home it did not occur to her that the red, white and green shades employed were the colors of the Kappa Sigma fraternity, of which her husband, Bernard Neal, is deputy grand master. Neither did she realize that at a later date she and Bernard would entertain the fraternity's supreme council, and the interior of the room would lend itself perfectly for the fraternity's colors in the floral decorations used at the party.

The Neals, you know, were hosts Wednesday at one of the merriest parties given this season. The affair was inspired by the meeting held here this week by the Kappa Sigma supreme council. The guests included Atlanta members of the fraternity and their wives, as well as the distinguished visitors here for the meeting.

The dining room's white ceiling provided a striking contrast for the floral decorations that blended so harmoniously with the exquisite green wallpaper featuring a design of enormous clusters of red roses. Rich red draperies hanging at the windows completed the striking color motif that emphasized the Kappa Sigma colors.

Sally agrees that the Neal home is one of the most attractive in the fashionable section of West Pace's Ferry road. The entrance hall of the home is papered in colonial gray shade. To the left is the spacious living room with white walls, aquamarine draperies and furniture upholstered in white, aquamarine and Dabonnet shades and a large rug of the latter color covering the floor. Just off from the living room is a sun parlor with pine-paneled walls and furniture covered with gay-colored chintz.

Back of the entrance hall is a pine-paneled study, the room that Pauline plans to turn over to the mer of her family. To the right of the entrance hall is the dining room, which would provide an exquisite setting for any party, with its brilliant color.

The beautiful stairway in the entrance hall leads to the bedrooms, each of which attests to the ingenuity of the charming chateleine of the home. The attractive Neal domicile is built back from the road on a sloping hillside and is surrounded by stately pine trees.

A NUMBER of the younger set have received novel invitations to the wiener roast at which young Peggy Ann Pangborn entertains on Saturday afternoon at Rockaway Farms, country home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pangborn.

Adorning the inside cover of the invitation is a water-color reproduction of the house situated on Rockaway Farms.

Peggy Ann's guests will number a group of her classmates at E. Rivers school, including Emily Wright, Valeria McCullough, Polly Jean Porter, Margaret Boyd, Ann Ragan, Ann O'Sullivan, Peggy Gay, Dorothy Summers, Jennie Belle Lovell, Jean Estes, Jackie Odum, Emily Alexander, Helen Walkley, Jean Williams, Carolyn Disbro, Barbara Dillon, Marion Pierson, Catherine Conn, Trimble Johnson, James Freeman, Robert Indell, Edwin Lockridge, Marvin Smith, Tommy Schneider, Leland Baggett, Harold Thomas, Wellborn Blalock, Sanford Pottinger, Andrew Williamson, Fred Turner, Reese Jones and Spencer Brewer.

Peggy Ann's clever invitations read as follows:

"The weather is so crisp and cool, Let's have a vacation from books and school."

Well make a fire in the barbecue pit

To roast marshmallows and wieners, and spit

Our sides laughing—if we can— With ping-pong, horseshoe and spin-the-pan.

Place Rockaway Farms, and please remember

It's Saturday—3 to 5—tenth of December"

Miss Craft Weds William Love At Beautiful Chapel Ceremony

Miss Eleanor Craft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beech Craft, became the bride of William Putnam Love Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Love, of Asheville, N. C., at a beautiful ceremony taking place last evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Winship chapel of the First Presbyterian church.

The Rev. William V. Gardner, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony and Dr. Charles A. Shelton, organist, and Mrs. Samuel A. Johnson, soloist, gave a musical program prior to and during the nuptials.

The chapel was effectively decorated with a bridal motif of green and white. The altar was banked with palms interspersed with floor baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladioli. Placed at intervals were seven-branch candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Wedding Personnel.

Groomsmen and ushers were the bride's cousin, Hayden Maclean, of Columbus, Ohio; Bayliss Love, of Charleston, S. C., and Charles Goodyear.

Miss Mary Craft, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor, and Miss Bobbie Jean Love, of Asheville, N. C., sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Maclean, of Columbus, Ohio, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore similar gowns of taffeta, fashioned with empire style with square necklines and puffed sleeves. Deep flounces around the bottom of the wide skirts gave the hoop-skirt effect. Miss Craft wore Persian blue taffeta. Miss Maclean wore periwinkle blue, and Miss Love wore fuchsia taffeta.

The attendants carried bouquets of red roses and parma violets and wore small caps of violets in their hair.

The junior bridesmaid, little Miss Barbara Craft, younger sister of the bride, was gowned in a miniature rose-pink taffeta model of the dresses worn by the other attendants and carried a similar muff of roses and violets.

The lovely bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Edward M. Vinson, of Cordele. She was becomingly gowned in a princess model of heavy slipper satin fashioned with sweetheart neckline, leg-of-mutton sleeves, and built-in train. Her veil of illusion tulle, which extended the length of the train, was caught to her hair with a coronet of orange blossoms. The bride carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Craft entertained at an informal reception at their home on Camden road. The reception rooms were adorned with white roses and chrysanthemums. The beautifully appointed bride's table was overlaid with an imported lace cloth and had for its central decoration the three-tiered wedding cake, showered with valley lilies and placed in a mound of white roses and chrysanthemums. Antique silver candelabra holding white tapers, tied with clusters of tulle and valley lilies and two low mounds of roses and chrysanthemums were placed at either end of the table.

Silver candlesticks holding white tapers and a low mound of lilies of the valley adorned the coffee tables, where Mrs. A. A. Maclean served coffee from a silver service. Compotes of white and green mints and nuts adorned the table.

Mrs. Craft received her guests in a handsome model of black lace with a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Love, mother of the groom, wore a becoming gown of black lace and her flowers were gardenias.

Wedding Trip.

Later in the evening the bridal couple left on their wedding trip to New Orleans, from which point they will sail for Havana. Upon their return they will reside at the Peachtree Hills apartment.

Mrs. Love traveled in black pin-stripe tailored suit, worn with a black topcoat and green accessories. Her flowers were gardenias and lilies of the valley. Out-of-town guests were Mrs. A. A. Maclean, Misses Mary and Lois Maclean, Hayden Maclean and John Maclean, of Columbus, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hawkins, of Greensboro, N. C.; Miss Clarissa Harris, of Memphis, Tenn.; and Mrs. W. P. Love, Mrs. W. P. Love Sr., Miss Bobbie Jean Love, of Asheville, N. C., and Bayliss Love, of Charleston, S. C.

For Miss Cheatwood.

Miss Dorothy DeKlyne honored Miss Edith Cheatwood, bride-elect, with a luncheon and kitchen shower yesterday at her home on Emory road.

A red and white color motif prevailed in the decorations and the dining room table was centered with a plate of red and white flowers. The shower gifts were arranged on a tray of red and white which carried out the motif chosen by the bride-elect for her kitchen. Mrs. W. P. DeKlyne assisted her daughter in entertaining.

Present were Misses Emily and Marion Mobley, Alberta Bell, Mesdames Ellis Peck, Barney Rickens, Bob Barrett, Emerson Hamm, Dodge Metzler, Lee Cone Fadden, Leon Jones and Cone Maddox Jr.

Barton performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends. Mrs. John M. Orr, pianist, and Mrs. Edward L. Hule, soloist, gave a musical program.

Vows were spoken before an improvised altar of palms which was flanked by seven-branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, with a basket of white chrysanthemums and gladioli, completing the decorations.

Miss Kathryn Harper, cousin of the bride and maid of honor, wore a gown of raspberry crepe featuring a tight-fitting bodice and full skirt. She wore matching accessories and a bouquet of Talisman roses and lilies of the valley. Karl Murphy Adamson, brother of the groom, was best man.

The charming bride entered with her uncle, Royal C. Camp, who gave her in marriage. She was becomingly gowned in sky blue wool crepe fashioned street length with matching coat of brushed wool. Her accessories were of maroon and her shoulder bouquet was of sweetheart roses and lilies tied with silver.

After the ceremony, Mrs. Harper entertained at an informal reception. The bride's table was overlaid with a linen cloth with fillet cutwork, and centered with a large mirror. Silver candlesticks, tied with white tulle, held burning white tapers and silver compotes held pastel-shaded mints.

Mrs. Harper wore wine georgette with a bouquet of gardenias and double violets. Mrs. Martin De Foer, mother of the groom, wore black crepe embroidered in pastel shades. Mrs. Emmett Plunkett had charge of the bride's cake and Mrs. Lewis Barnes Jr. presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Harper was assisted in entertaining by her sisters, Mrs. Royal C. ## They're Planning Yule Cheer for 1,000 Families

Every Atlantan Invited To Attend The Big Brothers' Rally Tonight

Those Who Feel Slightest Heart-Tug for Men, Women, Children Without Life's Necessities During Yuletide Urged to Call at 56 Peachtree or Mail Coupon.

If you've a heart—Tonight's the night! A rally of Big Brothers—meaning everybody in town who is willing to do actual work to insure a real Christmas for Atlanta's needy—will be held at the headquarters, 56 Peachtree street, at 8 o'clock.

There's but one proviso, according to A. L. Belle Isle, general chairman. No drones are wanted. Aside from that, every Atlantan is invited who responds to the call of Christmas, who feels even the slightest tug at the heart strings from the thought of men and women and children—especially children—being without the necessities, and even a few of the more accepted luxuries, on the most generous and kindly occasion of the year.

"This will be a real rally," declared the chairman. "We want a real crowd—and not just a crowd. We want workers. We want Democrats, Republicans, Eskimos, neorasthenics and just ordinary everyday people with a little store of kindness in them."

"Come on down to the headquarters, hear the statement of the needs and our plans for meeting them, and then let us know what you are willing and able to do as your share in this general community effort."

It will be the sixth annual rally of the Big Brothers movement. And for those who can't come, this coupon is reprinted, so that it may be signed and forwarded without difficulty, thus letting the directors know how many—and who—will take part:

SENATE LEADERS AGREE ON DEFENSE

Glass, Byrnes Think Additional Spending Necessary.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Two influential members of the senate appropriations committee—Chairman Glass, Democrat, Virginia, and Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina—agreed today that additional defense spending was necessary. They differed, however, as to whether the bulk of the increase should go to the army or navy.

Byrnes, who is chairman of the subcommittee on naval appropriations, said he favored immediate expansion of the army air force, observing that the navy already was "making good progress" on a construction program authorized by the last congress.

On the other hand, Senator Glass said he thought there was little need of increasing army appropriations materially, but that the navy should be built up to a point where all danger of invasion would be eliminated.

"They can't fight us if they can't get to us," the venerable Virginian declared. "If we have a navy that can stop them, there won't be any invasion."

Jane Dreams of Being Alone on Shore Watching a Steamer Pull Out to Sea

By RUBY M. AYRES.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: When Jane, youngest of the Brookes' three daughters, is 16, the family can scarcely believe the good news that her godmother, of whom they had seen little in years, has bequeathed her $100,000. Jane, who bothers little with her money, is an odd mixture of dreaminess and philosophy. Pamela, the eldest, is the beauty of the family. When Mrs. Brookes dies suddenly, Pamela steps naturally into their mother's place. Shortly before Jane is to get her legacy, Gavin Montford returns to England from Canada to visit his uncle, Dr. Bingham, the Brookes' neighbor and family physician. The Brookes' old car comes to a sudden stop while Jane is driving alone. Out for a walk, Gavin comes along and discovers the only trouble is that the gas tank is empty. While waiting with her two miles to a garage he learns that Jane is a very different thing, particularly about seeing the water. When Pamela tells Jane she is having Sidney Dale and Dr. Bingham's nephew to dinner, Jane doesn't mention having met Gavin. Lunching with Jane the next day, he tells her his parents died when he was at school and he went to Canada, trying a number of things with little success. Suddenly he asks her to marry him and she is very happy. He insists that Gavin use her money to start a business. He is reluctant to take it. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Good night," she said firmly, but she could feel her heart thudding, and then suddenly she sat up. "If you want to know," she said defiantly, "We're going to be married quite soon. Gavin's bought a partnership in a firm in London—and we're going to be married."

Jane flushed, and her eyes wavered. "Well, anyway, he's bought it," she said.

There was a little silence before Pamela spoke. "Don't you mean—you've bought it for him?"

Jane's eyes defied her. "It's not your business what I mean," she said. "I don't know why you suddenly take such an interest in my affairs—nobody ever did—till I met Gavin."

They looked at each other silently for a moment, then Pamela said bluntly, "Well, I never thought you'd be such a little fool. I suppose that is what he was after all the time—just a fortune-hunter."

Jane sprang out of bed, her eyes blazing. She caught her sister by the shoulders, shaking her. "How dare you say such a thing—how dare you!" Her voice trembled with passionate anger. "Go away—go away at once, do you hear?"

"Oh, I'll go," she said. "But I think you're a fool all the same. As a matter of fact, I rather suspected this."

Jane broke in, "You mean that of course no man would ever look at me if I hadn't any money—that's what you mean, isn't it? Well, it's a cruel lie—Gavin never knew about the money—he never knew until long after he asked me to marry him—he never knew."

Pamela walked out of the room.

AUNT HET

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

She loved him so much—she had no thought now which was not bound up to him. There was no sacrifice too great to make in order to keep his love—no weapon too cruel with which to fight for her happiness.

But presently, when she was calmer, she blamed herself for ever doubting him. He had given her no cause—and she was the diabolical one. What did it matter because Pamela had chosen to say cruel things about him? She closed her eyes and remembered the close pressure of his arms when he had kissed her good night.

"He belongs to me," she told herself. "He belongs to me." But there were still tears on her cheeks, and when at last she fell asleep it was to dream that she stood alone on the seashore watching a great ship ploughing its way out to sea—every moment going farther from her—till at last her straining eyes could see it no more.

And then she woke up to the knowledge that some one was gently shaking her, and that Mary, the middle-aged maid who had been with them since they were small children, was standing beside her with the tea tray.

Jane started up with a smothered cry, and then, recognizing her, sank, back, laughing tremulously.

"Ough! I was dreaming," she said.

"Dreaming! I should think you were dreaming," Mary said severely. "Crying out and wringing your hands."

"Crying out!" Jane echoed. She tried to laugh. "What was I saying?"

Mary set down the tray. "You were saying, 'Wait for me—wait for me—' as if your heart was broken with dreaming! I should think you just were!"

There was a little silence, then Jane said slowly, "I don't believe in dreams—do you, Mary?"

Mary settled her cap on her greying hair.

"Dreams go by contraries, so they say," she said. "I dreamt of a wedding one night, and in the morning I heard of a funeral—my mother's sister it was."

"And if you dream of a ship—" Jane asked.

Mary shook her head. "I've never dreamed of a ship, Miss Jane," she said. "But they do say that it's unlucky to dream of anything to do with water. They say it means teams—and a parting. And it's the same if you see the moon in the water—that means tears, too."

"The moon in the water!" Jane whispered.

"But drink your tea while it's nice and hot," Mary said. "L must go and wake Miss Dulcie—must that she'll get up—from what I know of her." And she bustled off.

But Jane's tea was cold long before she even remembered that it was there.

Like most selfish people, Dulcie had a quiet way of getting what she wanted without appearing to make any effort to do so. She was usually sweet and charming and apparently willing to fall in with the wishes of other people, and yet, as Jane slowly realized during the next few days, it was really other people who fell in with Dulcie's wishes.

She wondered how she had not discovered it before, and looking back, even as far as their school days, she could see now that she and Pamela had really always followed where Dulcie led.

She recalled little incidents of small importance which she had almost forgotten, games they had played—always Dulcie's choice; people they had invited to tea—Dulcie's friends; even the Christmas pantomime, which had been a special treat during their mother's lifetime had always been selected by Dulcie. Funny she should remember it now—remember on one occasion when she and Pamela had wanted to see Mother Goose, and Dulcie had wanted to see the Sleeping Beauty, they had gone to the Sleeping Beauty. There had been an incident, too, over the choice of frocks for a local birthday party. Mrs. Brookes had always pressed the three girls alike, as if they had been triplets, and when it had come to a decision about party frocks, Jane realized that it was always Dulcie who had the casting vote.

"I like pink," she had said, and pink it had been.

DEMPSEY GIVEN 1ST NEIL MEDAL BY RING SCRIBES

Jack, Shy as Schoolboy, Refuses Nomination at First.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(P)—The first Edward J. Neil Memorial medal, perpetuating the memory of the grand boxing writer and Associated Press war correspondent who was killed in Spain a year ago, was awarded today to Jack Dempsey as the man who has done most for the fight game in 1935.

The New York Boxing Writers' Association, donor of the medal, made the award to the ex-heavyweight king after deciding it should go annually to the boxer, past or present, who has meant most to the sport in the current year.

DEMPSEY SHY.

Dempsey, as shy as a schoolboy, at first refused nomination for the award, protesting it should go to a fighter active in the game. However, Jack finally accepted after a discussion among the writers during which it was pointed out that such an action would be too confining; that Dempsey, in all his activities still associated with the fight game—as referee, manager and speaker—is constantly working for the betterment of the game, and that to fight fans throughout the world he is the No. 1 figure of the sport.

Even when he finally accepted, Dempsey maintained he did not deserve it.

"I still think you're making a mistake, fellows," he told the writers. "Thanks a million, though. It's the finest thing I ever got."

HENRY MENTIONED. The writers, balloting at their regular meeting, voted Henry Armstrong, only simultaneous three-division champion in fight history, honorable mention for the award.

In addition to Dempsey, Gene Tunney and Lou Nova, promising heavyweight from California, were also on hand. Both Dempsey and Tunney advised Ray Carlin, Nova's manager, not to bring the blond husky along too fast.

"You have to take time with these young fellows," said Dempsey. "I can say for myself that I only started to learn the fight game after I left the ring. You can't give the youngsters too much experience."

All in the GAME

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 8.—Boiling Burtleigh Grimes, new manager of the Montreal club, has been standing vest to vest with Paul Richards, of the Atlanta club, trying to talk the Crackers out of Emil Mailho, the fiery Frenchman, but so far as can be determined Grimes will make about as much progress as a one-armed paperhanger.

Grimes is willing to buy Mailho outright or trade for him with cash on the side, but Richards is not willing to listen. Mailho figures too importantly in his plans for next season.

The fiery Frenchman is one of the more difficult batters to pitch to. Opposing pitchers call him a jitterbug. He is just as apt to punch out a hit to left as to right.

The Crackers also could sell Bobby Durham, the little mound man, to the majors. The Giants would like to have him. But Richards says "I would like to have a few more Durhams myself."

Little Bob is considered by Richards to be the best relief pitcher in the Southern league and an unexcelled spot pitcher. He is great at getting a game the Crackers need to win.

The Crackers are not figuring on disposing of many men off the present club. They are undecided about Eddie Rose, Leo Moon and Nig Lipscomb. All three may go.

Richards expressed the hope today that now the Baltimore deal for Chatham is off, that Buster may change his mind about wanting to make a deal and stay with Atlanta.

"I could use him at third base," Richards said. "Chatham is trying to better himself. He figures a change of clubs, after seven years with Atlanta, would be to his advantage." The wee shortstopper returned to his home in Waco today. He did not reveal whether or not he had a good offer in mind. He was made a number of good offers here.

The Crackers, seeking another infielder for insurance, would like to have Sperry, of the Athletics. They are considering Bramling, but Sperry is the man Richards would like to have. He plays either second or short and bats left-handed.

It is understood the Crackers have been successful in securing an experienced left-handed pitcher, but the deal is not ready for announcement.

HORNSBY PLAYS THE HORSES.

Each afternoon Rogers Hornsby may be found at the Fair Grounds trying to outwit the bookies as the bang tails run.

The Baltimore club does not care about what Hornsby does at his own leisure. And the Rajah always did like to bait the gray-maned Judge Landis, anyway. Hornsby is not the only baseball man who likes to

5,000 WILL WATCH TECH HIGH PLAY ANDREW JACKSON

Florida Team Will Employ Wide-Open Attack Against Smithies.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 8.—(P)—Andrew Jackson, of Jacksonville, and Tech High, of Atlanta, clash here tomorrow night in a post-season football game sponsored by a fraternal (Shrine) organization.

A crowd of approximately 5,000 persons is expected to watch the battle between ranking teams of Georgia and Florida. Jackson finished second in the state Big Ten conference and Tech High wound up third in the Georgia Interscholastic race.

Coach Mike Houser, of Jackson, said his team would employ a wide open attack, featuring a spectacular passing game, against the Smithies.

It will be the second appearance of the Atlanta school here in recent years. Tech High batted Julia Landon, of Jacksonville to a 13-13 draw in 1936.

THE SPORT LIGHT

By Howard R. Rice

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 8.—A coach down here told me a story today of a boy on his football squad. You would know the boy's name. It has been in the papers often enough. But it isn't necessary to the story.

"This kid was the sensation of his freshman team," the coach said. "I counted on him for a regular halfback post in his sophomore year and he made it all right. But he wasn't the player he should have been—not nearly as good as he had been the year before. I knew that it wasn't simply because he had moved up to the varsity and was meeting stronger opposition. I knew that he was worried at any time. But I don't know what he was worried about. He would give off flashes of his freshman form. Other days he was just a fair player. He never was downright poor. He had too much natural ability for that. But he would just coast along."

"I sent for him one day and asked him what was the matter with him. Was he worried about his studies or about anything? He laughed."

"No," he said. "I'm not worried about anything. Do I look it?"

"Not now," I said. "As a matter of fact, you haven't really looked worried at any time. But I don't understand why you aren't playing the kind of football you are capable of. I thought maybe you had something on your mind."

"No," he said. "That isn't the reason."

"Then what's the matter?" I asked.

"His answer amazed me. 'Nothing much,' he said, 'except that I don't like to play football.'"

The Reason He Played.

"Well, of course, I've heard of boys who didn't like to play football but were out there playing it for the sake of the old school and all that sort of thing but I never believed it. And this boy, now that I really was talking to him for the first time—I don't think I had said a half dozen words to him before except on the field or at blackboard drill—didn't impress me as the sort of kid who would be playing just for the old school."

"Are you serious?" I asked him.

"I never was more serious in my life," he said. "I just don't like football."

"Then why are you playing?" I asked. "Don't tell me you're sacrificing yourself for your alma mater."

"He laughed out loud. 'I should say not!' he said. 'Then what's the answer?'"

"He grinned at me. 'Oh,' he said, 'it makes me a big guy around the school. Maybe you've forgotten, Coach, but especially at a school like this, where they go in for football in a big way, a football player is a hero. He finds it easy to make dates and he gets invited to a lot of parties. He can't accept many of the invitations during the football season. But they come in handy during the winter. I knew that before I came here. I found out about it in high school. So I went out and made a name for myself on the freshman team and I'm doing all right on the varsity. Maybe you don't think so—but I'm having a swell time.'"

Too Good to Fire.

"Of course," said the coach, "I should have thrown him off the squad. Here I was, trying to make a football player of him and he—with all that ability—was just going along playing well enough to stay on the team so that he would be a big shot and get invitations to parties. But I didn't. To be honest with you, he was too good. Even if football was a laughing matter to him, I hoped to shake him out of that mood. I figured that if he ever got serious, I would

THESE ACE BALLCARRIERS WILL ROMP TONIGHT

Sonny Richardson, left, G. M. A.'s star back, and Monroe's Bill Yearout will be in action against each other tonight at Ponce de Leon when the Cadets battle the Aggies for the G. I. A. A. crown. Richardson was an all-southern back last year, while Yearout is Red Barron's ace ball-toter. A crowd of 8,000 is expected to see the game.

KICK-OFF SET FOR 8 O'CLOCK AT BALL PARK

Aggies' Powerful Running Backs To Test Cadets' Defense.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Tonight is coronation night. A new monarch will ascend the dais to be crowned. Out at Ponce de Leon park one of two grid elevens will become the 1938 king of all G. I. A. A. football teams. The new ruler will succeed dethroned Tech High, the 1937 monarch, who learned the old Bard of Avon, spake a mouthful when he said, "Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown."

Though it be contrary to tradition in other lands, it is a good old American custom to have two heirs apparent to one throne, and let them fight it out to determine which is the better fit to rule. So tonight the chosen two, the mighty G. M. A. Cadets and the potent and spectacular Monroe Aggies will match the best brains and brawn to be found in G. I. A. A. football circles this year, and one will emerge the victor and reign as state prep football king for the good year 1938 A. D.

8,000 EXPECTED. Some 8,000 onlookers are expected to throng the ball yard to see the state's best gridmen display their wares. Game time is 8 o'clock.

From Walker Park, Ga., abode of Barron's Bombing Monroes, comes the tipoff that the Aggies are primed to turn loose racing Bill Yearout and his buddies with all the speed, trickery and power in the book to attempt to bring the crown to the Monroe campus. The Aggies and their highly touted attacking power, are again in full strength, and they are raring to unleash their spectacular backs on the stubborn Cadet defense.

Coach Bud Harris, out at College Park, opines that his defense is set to curb the best thrusters the publicized Aggie attack has to offer, and that Sonny Richardson, Frank Fee and Company are ready to muster some offensive fireworks of their own, a brand that bears no belittling, when the grid foes cleat the Poncey sod tonight.

GOOD OFFICIALS.

Topnotch officiating for the fray is assured as Pup Phillips, ex-Yellow Jacket great and Rose Bowl official, will referee, and able assistance will be rendered by Umpire Buck Cheeves, once-famous Georgia back; headlinesman, Scrapper O'Sullivan, and field judge, George "Snap" Gardner.

All in all a scintillating array of talent will be on hand tonight to usher out 1938 prep football and usher in a new G. I. A. A. king. May the better king reign.

Mule Haas To Pilot Oklahoma City Club

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—(P)—

John Holland, president of the Oklahoma City club of the Texas baseball league, today announced the signing of George "Mule" Haas to manage the team on a one-year contract.

Haas started his baseball career in Oklahoma City as a player in 1923 and was made a free agent by the Philadelphia Athletics at the end of the last playing season. The Louisville Baseball club announced the straight sale of Second Baseman Leo Gorek to Birmingham.

Fischer Bill Phebus, of Chattanooga, was sold to the Hollywood club.

The Memphis Baseball club sold Catcher Vincent Monzo to Portland.

GOOD RECORD.

"Dutch" Meyer, during his five years as head coach at T. C. U., has won 43 games, lost 11 and tied 4.

Frisch Rejects Bid To Manage Pelicans

Majors Allowed To Sign Sandlotters; No Major Trades Consummated.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 8.—(P)—The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues placed a stamp of approval today on the so-called "Baltimore agreement," which opens the gate to major league clubs in the signing of sandlot players.

Arguments preceding discussion of the major-minor league agreement were brief, with a majority of the minor league delegates insisting that the "gates be opened wide" since it was certain the practice would go on regardless of legislation preventing it.

The decision brought about an abrogation of an agreement adopted at Montreal two years ago which permits the recommendation of players by an employee of one club to another—an agreement which Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis called a "subterfuge" in a recent ruling. The minors decided overwhelmingly to bring the practice above board.

The decision must be ratified by the major leagues in their meeting at New York next week.

Nothing Done. While the national association of 37 leagues squared off to deal with its official business, little transpired in the packed lobbies where major and minor league bargain hunters talked a lot and did nothing as far as a major piece of swapping was concerned. Big Zeke Bonura remained in the picture, with the New York Giants expected to buy the husky first baseman on Monday in New York if a few hitches are overcome. The Chicago White Sox were definitely blocking the consummation of the purchase by refusing to waive its claim, the conclusion being that the Sox were set to prevent a deal that might send Bonura to the Chicago Cubs.

Frank Frisch, ex-manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, who came here shopping for a job, made it understood he would not come to New Orleans as pilot of the Pelicans.

After talking half an hour with

To Answer Your Things-for-a-Man Gift Questions, We Offer the Following Six Suggestions—They're Chiefly Objets du Toilette—Brushes, a Fitted Case, a Set.

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD, Editor, Men's Fashions.

Among the things you can give to men are a pipe or a book or a fountain pen, but there are a few suggestions here that carry a bit more Christmas cheer. For instance, the pipe rack at the top is a novel thing with a golf club prop. The pair of brushes at the right fits in a case compact and tight. And, by the way, a set like this is a practical gift that can hardly miss.

If he passes many nights on trains, is a week-end guest or uses planes, if he's a camper or if he's a tenter, he'll like the fitted case (right center). There's everything in it he'll need (if hope)—mirror and brush and a case for soap. If you dislike the gift with left, you might try jewelry (next left). Here is a set—tie chain, and bar to hold the collar points at par. And to give the gift that special "wham," the pendant is a monogram.

One gift a man will greatly prize—a handy rack to hold his ties. At bottom, here are two such racks. The rubber-fronted one above holds ties as firmly as a monogram. The one below, with the horse-head crest, is a recent patent and one of the best. The arms to hold the ties are short; they fold back flat and don't get caught.

Next week's the last of this Christmas whimsy. I'm glad; my rimes are getting flimsy.

S. E. CONFERENCE WILL CONSIDER TWO PROPOSALS

Questions of Eligibility, Residence on Program Today.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 8.—(P)—Members of the Southeastern conference, meeting here tomorrow, may consider a proposal that its rules governing scholastic eligibility of college athletes be relaxed a little.

Along with this proposal there is one that the 13-member collegiate athletic organization tighten its residence requirement for members of varsity teams.

College presidents, athletic directors and coaches representing Alabama, Auburn, Florida, Georgia Tech, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana State, Mississippi, Mississippi State, Sewanee, Tennessee, Tulane and Vanderbilt assembled here tonight for a dinner and smoker before tomorrow's business session.

Professor Dean Slagle, chairman of the University of Florida faculty athletic committee, said there had been few advance suggestions for changes in the rules or the make-up of the conference.

BOWL GAMES. President John J. Tigert, of the host university here, said he knew of no plan to ask the conference to approve officially the Sugar Bowl football game at New Orleans each New Year's Day and the Orange Bowl game at Miami.

The committee arranging for the Orange Bowl game is aiding the university here with its entertainment of conference delegates but has no intention of asking the conference to stamp its official approval on the game at Miami, Tigert declared.

Slagle described the conference scholastic eligibility rule as "a more or less complicated system based on ratio of courses taken and passed" and said several conference members had proposed a more simplified and liberalized regulation.

ONE SUGGESTION. One suggestion, he said, is that a conference football player, or other member of a college varsity team, must have passed three-fourths of his courses during the previous college year in order to be eligible.

The proposal that the residence requirement be tightened, he said, is designed to prevent a student from dropping out of college as soon as the season for his particular sport has ended and then re-entering school the following year in order to play during that season.

The suggestion is that all varsity players must have attended school not less than three-fourths of the previous college term. He said he assumed that necessary absences could be made up in summer school sessions.

Some conference members, he added, want the rules clarified so that college baseball teams may play professional teams without exposing their varsity men to charges of ineligibility.

Another proposal, he said, is that fees for officials at college games be set by the conference committee for that particular sport rather than by the conference as a whole.

Kemp and Humphries Head Tonight's Card

Amateur boxers will again swing into action tonight at the West Side Arena, located at 758 Bankhead avenue. Promoter Frank Bettis announces eight good bouts will be seen on this card.

The feature match of the evening will be seen when Herman Kemp, the great little fighter from Howell Station, squares off against Howard Humphries, the amateur who sent George Smith, his opponent, to the canvas last week for the count during the first round. Kemp has been resting during the past two weeks, and states he will be in perfect condition for this opponent. Uual Marshall, Bob Adams, K. O. Fagan and other well-known fighters will appear on this program.

These matches are sponsored by the Disabled American Veterans and a large crowd has been attending the shows. The arena will be well-heated, and has seating accommodations for 1,000 fans.

Bookies Rank Trojans 2½-1 Choice Over Duke

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—The first odds on the 1939 Rose Bowl football game yesterday ranked Southern California's Trojans 2½-to-1 favorites over Duke University.

The price was quoted along Los Angeles' Spring street, where the odds of the town's football games are fixed. It was the widest margin U. S. C. had been favored over any opponent this season, and was based almost strictly on the Trojans' strong showing against Notre Dame last Saturday. U. S. C. has been beaten twice, Duke not at all.

The price was ridiculed in most quarters.

MINORS ADOPT BALTIMORE PLAN

Seymour Weiss, president of the New Orleans club, Frisch said:

"It's all right to say I'm not coming down here. I have a couple of propositions up along the line I want to consider. I've been in the big leagues 20 years and I think I owe it to myself to stay there."

Reliable reports here said Frisch had been offered the local manager's job at $12,000 a year but was now considering a coaching assignment with a National league club where both the salary and the responsibility would be less than in New Orleans.

Many of the major league out-fits were pulling out of the city, this move indicating that many of the anticipated big trades of the minor league sessions would fail to materialize. However, the association's business runs through Friday and one might expect anything to drop out of the lobby huddles.

After a brisk talk opposing the amendment by Judge William G. Bramham, president of the minor leagues, the group voted to withdraw a proposal that would have permitted payment of a bonus and part of the selection of purchase price of players' contracts to their managers.

Judge Bramham told the gathering that if this amendment were adopted it would create a situation of the clubs going back to "days of wild extravagance." He told them they should not try to get "too high hat" and "too extravagant." The proposal came from the Southern Association and Texas leagues, Class A-1 outfits.

The keynote of uniformity among minor leagues suggested by Judge Bramham in his annual report was carried out by the adoption of amendments boosting by two players the number that might be assigned on option, by each league classification. Class A-1 was lifted from seven to nine, Class A from six to eight, B from five to seven, C from three to five and D from two to four.

Also, the minors voted to establish a uniform and easily-determined method for defining the so-called "rookie" or "non-class" player. Numerous rules now in vogue, having the status of times at bat in various league classifications were termed confusing. The action brings the players into uniform classification.

ONE AFFILIATION. The minors referred back to the major leagues an amendment that would have prevented a major league team from having more than one affiliation in each league classification. Should the majors vote the amendment, the minors will take a mail ballot on the situation, but the status of times at bat in various league classifications were termed confusing. The action brings the players into uniform classification.

The minors defeated an amendment that would have eliminated the Shaughnessy post-season play-offs as a basis of determining league championships. Some leagues award the pennant on the basis of final standings, others to the winner of the post-season series, and the association voted to leave it that way.

CLASS A APPROVED. A request by some clubs showing a desire to organize Class E leagues to play a minimum of three games weekly was given approval. This action was designed to take care of young ball players quite ready for Class D baseball.

An amendment submitted by the International league seeking to increase the number of optional players that Class AA clubs may have on option from 10 to 12 was passed. The Baltimore club offered a similar amendment. A proposed amendment by the Middle Atlantic league to increase the player limit in Class C leagues in the off-season from 20 to 24 was withdrawn. A proposal to increase the salary limit in Class B leagues, submitted by the Piedmont circuit, was held up until a meeting tomorrow.

The International league submitted an amendment, which was defeated, that would have permitted teams to withhold delivery of notice of assignment of a player until the end of the season and post-season series if the assignment of contract was made after August 25.

WARREN UPSET BY NEHI OUTFIT IN HOT TILT, 43-39

Lauter's Club Can't Find Basket Against Flashy Invaders.

By THAD HOLT.

A band of ball-hawking, extremely talented basketballers representing the Columbus (Ga.) Nehi quintet, last night set too blistering a pace for a highly rated Warren team and won a 43-39 thriller at Warren arena. A crowd of 1,000 fans witnessed the rip-snortin' struggle, indicating that Atlanta is in for a banner cage season.

Shep Lauter, making his debut as Warren coach following several seasons of success with J. P. C. teams, was disappointed, but not discouraged, at the result. "Teamwork is everything in basketball and we cannot expect to develop it within a few weeks. Anyway, we lost to a real ball club. We play them later in the season and I believe we will make a better showing."

It wasn't a lack of teamwork which beat Warren last night, however. Lauter's boys, regarded as exceptionally fine shots, could hit only 14 out of 63 attempts from the field. That is poor shooting in any league and when such artists as Virlyn Moore, Ted Cabiness and Ed Copeland are missing 'em that bad, even their opponents will admit they had an off-night. Nehi, led by the firing of Hubbard, at forward, who sank 16 points, made good on 19 out of 37 field goal attempts. That is partly the story of their victory. The rest of it is the failure of Warren to follow up its shots and to battle for free balls. This, Nehi did, tirelessly and efficiently.

Nehi jumped into a 4-0 lead and Warren did not get ahead until nine minutes had elapsed. The lead seemed to be theirs until half-time with Warren quitting the floor with a 17-16 advantage. Warren led only once in the second half, holding a three-point advantage after four minutes of play.

Led by the great Elmer Riddle, catcher for the Boston Bees and a honey of a court player, the Columbus club took away that lead and held it to the finish, although Warren pulled up within three points of them with three minutes to go. The score at this point was Nehi 38, Warren 33.

Riddle's dribbling near the basket was spectacular and he eluded the Warren defense time and again, either for a snowbird, or a neat pass to an open mate. He bagged 11 points, Jones' floor game and all-round performance was also outstanding for the crack visiting team, which is going to beat a lot of clubs before the season is over.

For an early season game, both clubs set a dizzy pace and treated the big crowd to a fine performance.

Fred Bradford and Virlyn Moore each shot 10 points for Warren. The highly touted Ted Cabiness, last year ace of the Greer, S. C. team, was held to five points. He is strictly an "under the basket" shooter and his mates weren't feeding him the ball.

Warren needs practice and spirit and will get the practice. It is up to the boys about the spirit part. Some of the lads probably realize after last night's setback follow the horses. You can spot them, in goodly numbers, all over the grandstand. It seems that Hornsby is the most notorious of the hoss followers because he has had his off-hour pleasures publicized. The others are just as enthusiastic but fortunately escape the limelight.

Funny thing, Hornsby does not bet a great deal. That is to say, he is no plunger, if his activities at the Fair Grounds may be taken as a criterion. He wagers a modest sum on what races he picks out and often just stands there and watches them run for the pleasure of it.

Somehow, one feels Hornsby is not nearly so flagrant in his horse racing activities as has been advertised. It is likely that he just has been set up as a bad example. Which is okay with him. He is an independent cuss.

MORE ROOM NEEDED. The Sugar Bowl people have had requests for around 150,000 ticket reservations for the T. C. U.-Carnegie Tech game on January 2, and they can take care of only one-third of that number.

Leading hotels have been sold out since before the game was announced. It is impossible to get either tickets or a room. It is only going to be a matter of time until the Sugar Bowl affair outdraws the Rose Bowl. The only thing that prevents it from doing so now is lack of seats in Tulane's stadium.

They're going to add more seats next year. The Sugar Bowl game is only five years old, but it really is a husky infant. It is away yonder bigger than its age.

Mike O'Leary, the former Atlantan who runs the St. Charles, is one who believes the Sugar Bowl already has stolen the thunder of the Rose Bowl, but that it would not be wise to enlarge the stadium too quickly.

Word from the Orange Bowl, where Tennessee and Oklahoma will meet, is that 75,000 or more tickets could be sold if there was any place to seat the people. The Cotton Bowl also will be sold out.

This has been a golden year for football in the south from a financial standpoint. Duke will bring back around $80,000 net from the Rose Bowl trip, and Tech will make considerable money out of the California game.

MARATHON ENDS TOMORROW.

The great stand-around convention that comes under the heading of national minor league baseball meeting will end tomorrow evening. Sometimes you wish they would heed the words of the song and roll up the rugs and dance. Anything to interrupt the continuous monotone and buzzing of voices.

There seems to be credence to the report that one of the delegates to the honey bee convention, sleeping on the second floor, dreamed his bees were loose and rushed down into the lobby and tried to put Joe Engel in a hive.

The lobby does sound like a great hive of bees. They start in early morning and last until late at night.

But most of the big deals are made right there in the lobby. They stand behind potted plants within earshot of everybody and transact their business.

They are not heard because everybody else is busy talking, too. The lozenges people do a great business at the convention.

SCOTT IS WEARY.

Major Trammell Scott, popular president of the Southern league, is a bit arm weary. When around 1,000 folks congratulate you on an appointment over the course of a few days, you are apt to feel the effects of all the handshaking.

Scott is well liked by the baseball people. He naturally is one of their kind. He talks their language. He has become a national committeeman now. Baseball will be able to use some of his sound ideas to great advantage. Atlanta seems rather fortunate to have two baseball men of the Mann-Scott standard.

In a preliminary, Warren reserves whipped Avondale Athletic Club, 56-39. Cherry Foster, who belongs on the Warren varsity, led the winners' scoring with 15 points.

Atlanta Will Have Working Agreement With Savannah

ATLANTA BOSSES SECURE PITCHER; WITHHOLD NAME

Crackers 'Repeat' Training Site for First Time in Years.

By JACK TROY.
NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 8.—President Earl Mann officially confirmed Savannah as the 1939 training camp of the Crackers today and at the same time announced working agreements had been effected with Savannah and Waycross.

The feature of this is that all three are Georgia teams. Atlanta worked with Jacksonville and Gadsden last season.

In returning to Savannah to train, the Crackers are repeating on a camp for the first time since Mann has been president. Training camps in the Mann regime have been Daytona Beach, Gulf Port, Panama City and Savannah. The Crackers had a month of perfect weather at Savannah last year and Manager Paul Richards is desirous of extending the training period over a month in order to have more time with the extensive crop of rookies the Crackers will have.

The Atlanta club is going slow on deals at the national minor league baseball convention. They are in the market for an infielder and two pitchers. They have secured one of the pitchers, a left-hander, but the deal is not ready to be announced.

The Crackers would like to have Sperry, a left-handed hitting second baseman from the Athletics. They also are talking about an infielder named Barling, property of the A's.

At the present time the Crackers have three left-handed hitters—Jack Bolling, Emil Mailho and John Rucker—and Richards would like to have one more.

With one pitcher deal completed, the Crackers have only one more to get before the club will be set for next season. An experienced right-hander to take Bill Beckman's place is the chief need to bolster the mound staff.

ANOTHER INFILDER.
Another infielder, who may be secured from the A's, also is needed in case Buster Chatham does not return to the club.

Right now the Crackers definitely have Bolling, Rubeling, Peters and Mauldin as infielders. The latter will be tried at third base, a position he played before becoming an outfielder.

The outfield of Oetting, Rucker and Mailho is set. For pitchers the Crackers have Johnston, Harris, Miller, Durham, Robinson, Stein, Richards and Williams will

'NO THIRD TERM' SOUNDED IN BOOMS FOR PRESIDENCY

Garner, Clark and McNutt Backers All Indicate Party Lineup Opposing Roosevelt Race.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(P)—The Garner-for-President boom in Texas, rivaling in political trappings the movement started a year ago by Indiana Democrats for former Governor Paul V. McNutt and the "corned-beef-and-cabbage" dinner boom for Senator Bennett Clark, of Missouri, is significant in the opinion of politicians here.

$600,000 To House Hoover War Relics

PALO ALTO, Cal., Dec. 8.—(UP)—A $600,000 home on the Stanford University campus was announced tonight for the war library of former President Hoover which contains such relics as the unopened trunk that belonged to the spy, Mata Hari, and a file of the state and private papers of Bela Kun, who headed a short-lived Communist government in Hungary.

The collection was expected to be of immeasurable value to future historians, since it is considered the largest on current history in the world.

Various tactical and strategic advantages of getting into the field early, appeal to the boom-makers. The booms are good advertising, for one thing, keeping the candidate in the public eye.

But they have sometimes quite another underlying purpose. They provide a rallying point for party leaders from states which have no prospective favorite son candidates of their own for 1940. It is that aspect of the new Garner boom in Texas that first catches political eyes in Washington.

The fervor of the Texas demonstration for Garner attracted less attention than the fact that it was founded outspokenly on a "no third term" base. That gives it implications to political writers of a more definite "stop-Roosevelt" movement in the making than an indication that Garner wants or would accept a presidential nomination.

Doubt prevailed in 1932 that Garner, the convention runner-up, actually wanted the nomination or the presidency. It still exists in many quarters, six years later. The political map as remade in the recent elections does not indicate that the deepest south is a happy hunting ground for Democrats in 1940 presidential timber. It does point to the middle west, and there Senator Clark, of Missouri, reputedly picked by Garner long ago as a 1940 presidential possibility, must be reckoned with.

TVA SHOWS PROFIT, OFFICIALS REPORT

Statistics Presented Investigators Detailing Annual Surplus of $3,146,401.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(UP)—Tennessee Valley Authority officials today denied charges that the agency is a money-losing proposition and presented statistics purporting to show that full operation of TVA's 10 power dams will give the government an annual profit of $3,146,401.

J. A. Krug, chief of TVA's power planning operations, presented the study to the joint congressional committee investigating the agency in reply to testimony of former TVA Chairman Arthur E. Morgan and Edward W. Moreland, dean of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who both claimed the project would result in a huge loss.

Estimating total cost of the 10-dam system will be $494,092,864, Krug said that total power revenues under contracts already made will bring in $20,251,000. He said this will exceed by more than 15 per cent the amount required to "cover all costs to the government on the direct power investment and the common investment allocated to power."

REPUBLICAN WARNS OF 'PUSSYFOOTING'

Stringent Criticism of New Dealers Advocated by Wadsworth.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—(P)—Representative James W. Wadsworth, of New York, a candidate for the house minority leadership, urged his fellow Republicans today to "courageously oppose" what he described as "fallacies of the New Deal."

Taking issue with elements of the party who advocated "soft pedaling" criticism of some administration policies, the New Yorker declared "there should be no pussyfooting. We should criticize the New Deal honestly and openly whenever we consider criticism justified."

Wadsworth arrived here as friends started circulating a letter among 80 newly-elected Republican members soliciting support for his leadership candidacy.

Jaycee Executives Meet at Luncheon Here

STRONG CIVIC SPIRIT URGED TO JAYCEES

National President Stresses Part Young Men Play in U. S. Affairs.

Strong civic consciousness is the chief foundation of a Junior Chamber of Commerce, Phil C. Ebeling, of Dayton, Ohio, president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, told members of the Atlanta organization at a luncheon yesterday at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Ebeling, a Dayton, Ohio, attorney, declared the organization was not primarily of business. It has a philosophy wherein young men may join in friendly spirit to inculcate civic consciousness by participation in city, state and national affairs, he declared.

"The Junior Chamber of Commerce fills a definite need," he said. "It provides a means for the young business man to associate with his contemporaries in something worthwhile."

"It is Democratic and extends its hand of welcome to persons of all creeds and all degrees of wealth. America always has been a country for young men. The founders of the nation all were young men, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce provides a chance for young men of today to play their part in the nation's affairs."

The important aim of the organization today, he added, was to inculcate a civic consciousness among its members. "We must have a proper spirit to solve our problems and it is through the development of individual characters that this spirit can be had," he said.

Guests at the luncheon included Mayor Hartsfield, John Underwood, mayor of Mount Vernon, Ga., and representatives of the city and county. William A. Horne Jr., president of the Atlanta Junior Chamber, presided.

MUSHROOM CAPITAL NAMED. Ninety per cent of all the mushrooms grown domestically in the United States is produced within a 10-mile radius of Kennett Square, Pa., according to information available.

MRS. 'DIXIE' DAVIS SEEKS DIVORCE TODAY

RENO, Nev., Dec. 8.—(UP)—Martha Delany Davis appears in court tomorrow to divorce J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, New York attorney, indicted as the "mouthpiece" of the late Arthur (Dutch) Schultz Fliegenheimer's $20,000,000 a year policy racket.

She will charge mental cruelty in her suit against Davis, who, since his arrest in Philadelphia several months ago in company with Hope Dare, former Broadway showgirl, has been in custody of District Attorney Thomas Dewey, of New York.

Parsons Lament As Law Dooms Quick Marriages

ELKTON, Md., Dec. 8.—(P)—Business indices in Elkton's major industry—weddings without waiting—sank tonight beneath a flow of salty tears from marrying parsons and innkeepers.

For midnight meant the beginning of a new era for this town of 3,600 where more than 16,000 weddings were performed in 1938, and which for a quarter of a century has been without competition in the quick marriage industry.
At least one minister declared his intention of moving to Alexandria, Va., a few minutes' ride from the nation's capital, where marriages may still be had without delay or medical examinations.

But several of the remaining five parsons were uncertain over their move. They hoped the free state's new marriage law requiring a 48-hour lapse between application and marriage, which became effective at 12:01 a. m., still would be attractive to New Yorkers, Pennsylvanians, New Jerseyites and Delawarians.
